Premier Sees King Twice As Belgian Crisis Grows

Cabinet Majority Reported Favoring Abdication; 3 Die In Clash With Police

Brussels (Monday), July 31 (U.P.).—The Belgium Cabinet interrupted an emergency session at 4:05 a. m. today (11:05 p. m. Sunday, EDT) without any announcement on the future of King Leopold.

Premier Jean Duvieusart, accompanied by Foreign Minister Paul van Zeeland, Justice Minister Carton Dewiart and Interior Minister Albert de Vleeschauwer, brushed past reporters and drove off in a car.

The other 11 ministers remained in the Cabinet office, giving rise to the belief the Premier was taking a Cabinet proposal to the King, whose return from exile threatened to plunge Belgium into civil war.

[The Associated Press said the majority of the Cabinet was said to favor Leopold's abdicating.—Editor's note.]

Premier Confers With King

The meeting was called after Leopold's eight-day reign of violence came to a bloody climax Sunday at Liege when three anti-Leopold demonstrators were shot to death and eight other persons were wounded.

Pro-Leopold Premier Duvieusart conferred last night with the controversial monarch at heavily guarded Laeken Palace—itself the scene of earlier riots—after Socialist Party Leader Max Buset warned that civil war may break out in Belgium today.

There were widespread but unconfirmed reports that Leopold planned to abdicate in favor of his son, 19-year-old Crown Prince Baudouin. But there were other reports that Leopold's Cabinet may resign and that he will try to form another.

Order Against March Defied

Half of the nation regards him as a patriot. The other half regards him as a traitor and a collaborator with the Nazis and has sworn a fight to the finish against his return to the throne from five years of forced exile.

The Cabinet meeting was called after Buset warned Sunday night: "If something is not done, it will be civil war tomorrow."

Earlier the Government had ordered Belgian troops to repel

Political Union Of Pact Nations Urged by Roberts

New York, July 30 (U.P.).—Former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts said today that the Korean war proves the need for a political union of Atlantic Pact nations to fight Communist aggression.

Roberts, president of the Atlantic Union Committee, appealed to President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson to call a convention of the democracies to consider forming such a political unity.

"The Korean war has spotlighted the weakness of alliances in the face of aggression," Roberts said.

Senate Rider Would Abolish Thousands of Employes' Leave

WILLIAMS DOUGLAS KEM
. . . Their rider would curb Federal leave benefits

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Annual and sick-leave benefits would be abolished for tens of thousands of Federal workers and be reduced for more than a million others in a provision to be voted on this week by the Senate.

The rider, sponsored jointly by Senators Douglas (D., Ill.), Williams (R., Del.) and Kem (R., Mo.), to the general appropriation bill, provides that no Federal worker could be given annual or sick leave until he had been in "continuous Government service for at least one calendar year."

In addition, annual leave for classified and per-diem workers would be cut back from 26 to 20 days, and sick leave from 15 to 12 days annually. The amendment, however, would increase annual leave for the 450,000 postal

15 Republicans Urge Standby Control Setup

Total Mobilization Plan Of House Group Lets Congress 'Pull Trigger'

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Fifteen Republican members of the House yesterday issued a "total mobilization" statement calling for immediate enactment of a standby system "of price, wage, profit and rent controls, rationing of essential commodities in short supply, allocation of critical raw materials and other essential necessities."

The statement should give a big push to the snowballing drive for enacting more powers to fight inflation than President Truman has requested. The House begins consideration of a limited mobilization measure on Tuesday.

The GOP statement, however, called for Congress to retain the power to "pull the trigger" and put the standby powers into effect. The Administration will be certain to vigorously oppose any suggestion that such powers, if enacted, be refused the President.

Political Overtones

The Republican statement had political overtones for it declared that the Korean situation "has exposed the fact that a tragic diplomatic and military inadequacy exists." It added that "lack of leadership at this time will breed hysteria or complacency" and said the answer was a "vigorous program of positive action of which the American public is made aware."

The 15 signers were Representatives Allen (Calif.), Boggs (Del.), Byrnes (Wis.), Cotton (N. H.), Davis (Wis.), Ford (Mich.), Guill (Tex.), Jackson (Calif.), Keating (N. Y.), Lovre (S. D.), Morton (Ky.), Nelson (Me.), Nixon (Calif.), Norblad (Ore.), and Potter (Mich.).

All but Davis, Keating and Lovre joined in a call for immediate universal military training. Otherwise the program outlined was agreed to by all 15, among the more "liberal" members of the GOP.

The statement based its demand for "total mobilization" on this general premise:

"We consider that the present military action in Korea cannot be deemed an isolated event. It is a manifestation of the Communist intent to achieve world domination.

Tobin Urges Cooperation in Use of Labor

Labor Secy. Seen in Temporary Role of Manpower Director

By The Associated Press

The Labor Department yesterday took up the task that was performed in World War II by a War Manpower Commission.

Secretary Maurice J. Tobin announced that he has ordered the "fullest use" of the United States Employment Service and its affiliated State employment services in meeting the manpower needs of defense plants.

The tone and timing of the announcement seemed to suggest that Tobin has been given a go-ahead as manpower boss of the war effort—for the present at least.

Only the future can reveal whether growing mobilization will bring into being a new manpower commission with a new boss.

Tobin told employers it is "absolutely essential" to refrain from hoarding manpower or pirating workers away from defense production.

Although scattered shortages have appeared in certain skilled occupations, Tobin said he is confident severe scarcities can be avoided and defense employers

Archaeologists Unearth Hand of 'Winged Victory'

Paris, July 30 (AP).—American archaeologists have unearthed the right hand and a finger of the more than 2200-year-old Greek art treasure, the Winged Victory of Samothrace.

The armless and headless sculpture, found in 1863, is in the Louvre Musuem. Excavations for the remnants of the famous statue are under way on the Aegean Sea island of Samothrace under the supervision of Karl Lehmann of New York University.

The French Academy of Inscriptions and Belles Lettres has been notified that the statue's hand is a little over 5 inches long and open—thereby disposing of one theory that the original of the famed figure might have held a trumpet or crown.

Auto Crash Kills Marylander; Four Hurt as Car Hits Bus

One man was killed and six persons injured in traffic accidents in and near the District yesterday.

The dead man was James C. Thompson, 39, of Bryans rd., near Pomonkey, Charles County, Md.

State police said he was injured fatally about 9:15 a. m. yesterday when his car went out of control and overturned on Route 227, a mile east of Pomonkey. The community is between Indian Head and La Plata, Md.

Thompson was taken to Casualty Hospital, where he was pronounced dead of a skull fracture at 4:10 p. m.

Injured in the accident was a passenger, James C. Newman, 37, also of Bryans rd. He was admitted to Casualty with a fractured right ankle. His condition last night was good.

State police at the Waldorf station said they did not know what caused the car to go out of control.

The collision of an auto and a Greyhound bus at Wisconsin ave. and Van Ness st. nw. about 12:30 a. m. yesterday injured four persons, two seriously.

Injured were Pfc. Mack W. Craver, 19, of 5016 MacArthur blvd. nw., driver of the car; Frank Ryan, jr., 20, and Joseph P. Trainer, 21, both sailors stationed at the Naval Air Station, Quonset

MacArthur Sees Chiang On Formosa

Chief of 7th Fleet Flies With General For Military Talks With Nationalists

Taipei, Formosa (Monday), July 31 (AP).—General MacArthur arrived in Taipei today for a major conference with Chiang Kai-shek on the war in Asia against Communism.

Talks with Chiang and other Chinese Nationalist leaders undoubtedly will include discussion of Chiang's offer of 33,000 Nationalist troops to fight with United Nations forces in Korea.

Former Foreign Minister Wang Shih-Chieh, one of Chiang's closest advisers, said General MacArthur's "arrival is most timely. There are so many questions awaiting discussion and decision."

Lands on Rainswept Field

MacArthur's plane, the Bataan, came down on Taipei's rainswept air field at 1:05 p.m. (9:05 p.m. Eastern Standard Time) after an unheralded flight from Tokyo.

The General was accompanied by Admiral Arthur D. Struble, commander of the United States Seventh Fleet, and other top officials.

There was no prior announcement or indication that the commander of United Nations forces contemplated such a flight.

A public information office announcement in Tokyo said:

Order for 'Protection'

This was Mr. Truman's order to the United States Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa from invasion by the Chinese Communists who had announced they would "liberate" the Nationalist island bastion this year. At the same time, Mr. Truman also requested the Chinese Nationalists to cease attacks on the Communist mainland of China.

It was the General's first visit to Formosa, eastern anchor of the wide United States defense line.

MacArthur has consistently advocated that American material and support be supplied to Chiang for the defense of Formosa. He proposed that the aid be supplied under the administration of an American military mission based on the island.

Heretofore he has maintained touch with Chiang through periodic visits of Chinese Nationalist representatives to Tokyo.

Admiral Struble's Seventh Fleet is patrolling the water between Formosa and the Communist-held mainland of China.

Held 'Defensive' Action

Chinese Air Force Destroys 150 Red Ships Facing Quemoy

Taipei, Formosa, July 30 (AP).—The Chinese Nationalists announced that their airplanes today sank or damaged more than 150 of 500 Communist craft threatening an invasion of Quemoy Island, just off Amoy on the Red-held China mainland.

It was the first Nationalist air strike since they halted air and sea operations against the mainland June 28—the day after President Truman asked them to do so.

There was no explanation whether the action had the approval of authorities in the United States or of officers of the United States Seventh Fleet, which is protecting the Nationalist headquarters island of Formosa against Communist attack. United States officials have said, however, that purely defensive Nationalist actions are not banned.

Air headquarters said in a communique tonight:

"To frustrate Chinese Communist attempts to invade Quemoy Island, Chinese air force fighters and bombers today resorted to self defense measures by sinking and damaging more than 150 Communist ships in the area of Quemoy.

"Following their failure to occupy Taitan Island (an islet near Quemoy) last Wednesday night, Communists continued in the past few days to harass government positions on Quemoy with sporadic shelling and indicated their intention to invade that island by concentrating in that area more than 500 ships, including a large number of motorboats and motor-sailing junks.

"Ships sunk and damaged by the Chinese air force today included one motorboat and three motor-sailing junks."

Air-Ground Link Seen Established In Korea Theater

An Air Force briefing officer yesterday said it was apparent United States forces in Korea have successfully established air-ground communications to provide close air support of ground troops.

From reports reaching the Pentagon, he said that it now is possible for ground troops to use aircraft as "extended artillery." In good weather, he said, Air Force craft can "wait up there to be called in where needed."

The briefing officer indicated that air-ground radio communications have been installed on the front lines "so bombers can be called on short notice to hit trouble spots."

"When they put good equipment right up front, I think it indicates they are not going to move backwards any further," the Air Force spokesman said.

Church Named 24th Division Commander

Succeeds General Dean; Missing U. S. Officer's Whereabouts Mystery

Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, July 30 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. John H. Church, an Infantry specialist, today was named commander of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division, to succeed Maj. General William F. Dean, who is missing in action on the Korean war front.

Church originally was assigned to organize the American holding action as commander of United States Army forces in Korea after the invasion by North Korean Communists.

"Feeler" Attack Foiled

His appointment as Dean's successor was announced in an Eighth Army communique that also reported that American troops had thrown back an enemy "feeler" attack and were holding their ground successfully all along the South Korean front.

The whereabouts of Gen. Dean remained a mystery. He was last officially reported on the front lines in the battle to hold Taejon last week.

Dean's aides reported him rallying troops in the retreat from Taejon, and some survivors of the battle said they saw him in the mountains.

Dean took over command of United States Army forces in Korea from Church after American ground troops grew with the arrival of reinforcements. Dean subsequently was replaced by Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker when Eighth Army headquarters were established in Korea. Dean became 24th Division commander and Church became Gen. MacArthur's senior liaison officer in Korea.

Assistant to Devers

Church served in World War II with the Forty-first and Eighty-fourth Infantry Divisions and participated in the invasion landings in Salerno, Anzio and southern France. A large part of his 30-year Army career was spent in infantry training.

He went to the Far East in 1948 from Fort Monroe, Va., where he was special assistant to Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of Army field forces.

He served in the Ryukyu Islands as military governor.

Bombing Paying Off

MacArthur's Experts See Time Working Against Reds

Tokyo, July 30 (NYHT).—Gen. MacArthur's intelligence chiefs disclosed today the factual basis for their optimism about the Korean war situation and the reasons for their opinion that time now is working strongly against the enemy.

This optimism assumes the early arrival at the Korean front of fresh Army and Marine Corps shock troops, together with additional tanks and ground-support aircraft.

There now is evidence from many sources that the bombing and machine-gunning program which has been directed against North Korean railroad and highway bridges as well as rail-traffic marshalling yards since July 23 is beginning to pay off—the purpose being to stop any movements of men and supplies.

All such movements on land now take place at night, mostly with horse carts and pack trains instead of trucks, according to MacArthur's intelligence heads. During the past three days the Navy has observed increasing enemy efforts to move supplies down the coast by barge.

The North Korean radio, in an apparent attempt to bolster sagging morals, brought about by the bombings, has begun to report entirely false air combat victories against United States Air Force

Hamchang, Anchor Point Of Defense, Threatened

North Koreans Move Toward Taegu in Several Thrusts; Supply Line in Peril

Tokyo, (Monday) July 31 (AP).—North Korean Reds today crashed through Kochang on the western front, knifed into the defensive anchor of Hamchang on the north and launched an all-out drive on Chinju in a wide flanking move in the south.

The Communists were raining hammer blows on the front before the vital communications center of Taegu, through which supplies funnel on the main highway and rail routes from Pusan. The southern drive increased the threat to Pusan itself.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported a Communist power drive had carried through Kochang to a point within 30 miles southwest of Taegu. This held flanking danger to the supply lines.

Lines Withdrawn Intact

United States Eighth Army headquarters said American lines in the Kochang sector were withdrawn intact before the Red assault and were holding east of the town. Mustang fighter pilots told Whitehead North Korean dead were strewn "like confetti" along the roads to Kochang, and Red trucks drove over the bodies on their way to the lines.

The Red thrust on Chinju, 55 miles west of Pusan and the same distance southwest of Taegu, also was a flanking threat to the supply lines to the front.

Tanks and armored cars headed North Korean infantry in the 30-mile push to Chinju from Hadong, Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle reported.

Yanks Leaving Chinju

American aerial observers said United States troops were pulling out of Chinju and setting up defensive positions to the east. General MacArthur's early Monday afternoon operational summary appeared behind field dispatches. It said the "defense of Chinju is being conducted by combined South Korean and American troops."

The Reds closed in toward Taegu from the north by infiltrating into Hamchang, key bastion in the center of the American-South Korean line. The fall of Hamchang was not confirmed officially but Correspondent Tom Lambert said it was strafed and set afire by Allied fighter planes.

The North Koreans got into Hamchang, 50 miles north-northwest of Taegu, by cutting behind the main South Korean force which had been driving toward Mungyong, eight miles north of Hamchang. The Sixth South Korean Division attacked the Reds, field reports said, but whether they had been able to get back into Hamchang was not clear.

The Communists were shoving toward Taegu from the northwest between Kochang and Hamchang. This pressure point was at Chirye, 32 miles from Taegu.

Troops of the First Cavalry Division fought into Chirye Sunday

Guerillas Invade Command Post

With the First Cavalry Division in Korea, (Monday) July 31 (AP).—North Korean guerillas slipped into an American Cavalry command post today and inflicted some casualties in a sharp 10-minute skirmish.

The action started when guerillas began shooting up the building. Several American officers left through the windows. They were met by machine-gun fire.

A sergeant killed the Red machine-gunner.

Unofficially it was learned one South Korean was killed, an American major wounded, perhaps fatally, and six other Americans hit. The six were believed to be officers. The two most seriously injured were evacuated by air.

An American spokesman said four raiders were killed.

Marines to Parade To Train Today

Washington's Organized Marine Reserves, several hundred strong, will parade to Union Station today on their way to active duty at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

The local Leathernecks, first organized Marine Reserve unit in the country to leave home, will march at 4 p. m. from their armory at 3d and C sts. nw.

Route of the march will be south on 3d st. to Constitution ave., east on Constitution ave. to the Senate Office Building, and then north on Delaware ave. to the railroad station, where they will enter by the east portal. Their special train is scheduled to leave at 5 p. m.

While several women marines will be in the contingent leaving for active duty, they will go to the station on American Red Cross buses.

In the line of march will be the Marine Band, Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, Washington Marine Corps Reserve Band and several guests, including Maj. Gen. M. H. Silverthorn, USMC, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps and director of the Division of Reserve, and past commanding officers of the Reserve unit.

On the recruiting front, local offices of the various armed services had a fair weekend. The Army Air Force recruiting station at Arlington Farms swore in 17 recruits for the Army and three for the Air Force on Saturday. Sixteen applications were received yesterday, which were to be processed today.

The Navy swore in five seamen recruits and one for the Reserve Saturday, while yesterday, four recruits were enlisted and three reenlistees accepted for the regular Navy.

The Marines accepted one recruit Saturday of 15 men who applied. Yesterday, four applied, and their qualifications will be checked today.

The Army, in need of medical and dental officers, pointed out that doctors and dentists volunteering for a year's active duty receive $100 extra pay a month. This was authorized in 1947 as an incentive for such volunteers, and is still in effect for all the armed forces.

Plane Wreckage Sighted

Algiers, July 30 (AP).—Wreckage of a Bristol transport plane, missing since yesterday with 26 passengers and four crew members aboard, has been sighted in the Sahara, the air-transport company said tonight. No sign of life was visible.

'Forward Pricing'

New Payment Plan for Crop Prices Urged

A National Planning Association report said yesterday that the present Federal farm program is wasteful, inefficient, and will not guarantee the farmer a stable income over the long run.

As a remedy, it suggested Government-guaranteed prices based on best estimates of future supply and demand, rather than on the present parity system aimed at creating a specific farm-income level.

This so-called "forward pricing" plan would include direct payments to farmers when market prices fall below Government-set price levels. The report suggested consideration of a special tax on farmers when market prices rise above Government levels. The money would pay for the scheme in lean years.

The report was written by Oscar Heline, president of the Farmers Grain Dealers Association of Iowa, and Donald Kaldor, associate professor of economics at Iowa State College. It was the result of a study by the agriculture committee of the NPA, a non-profit research organization.

The 26-member committee, composed of farm organization leaders, producers, farm journal editors and economics professors, did not endorse the report, but agreed it should be published. They added individual views differing in varying degrees with the findings. Sharpest attack came from President James G. Patton of the Farmers Union, who said the report "should not be published." He said it was full of "fuzzy economic terms" which will not help solve long-range farm problems.

The report said the controversial Brannan Plan, calling for production payments to farmers to meet the difference between market and support prices, could be a "significant step" toward more efficient use of farm commodities.

But it critized income levels of the Brannan Plan as too high and too rigid.

"Forward pricing," the report said, "would have the Government announce a guaranteed future price to producers for each product before farmers make their production plans," it stated.

Bowles Urges 4-Point Attack On Price Rises

Hartford, Conn., July 30 (U.P.).—Gov. Chester Bowles, who watched the Nation's purse-strings during World War II, urged Congress today to adopt a limited four-point program to fight rising prices.

The former Office of Price Administration director outlined his plan in a letter to Chairman Burnet R. Maybank of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The group meets Monday to consider legislation dealing with prices and allocations.

Bowles' plan:

1. Congress should give President Truman immediate authority to roll back to June 15 levels the wholesale or producer prices of basic commodities.
2. Give the President the power to allocate scarce materials in industrial production, and to impose direct controls whenever necessary.
3. Authorize immediately a Federal agency to mobilize, direct and coordinate our voluntary efforts to bring general prices in line at all levels—producer, wholesale and retail.
4. Enact a new standby price control law to put "teeth" into the voluntary price control plan.

Martin Sees GOP Ruling New House

By The Associated Press

Republican strategists resurveyed the political situation yesterday and claimed they will easily win control of the House in the November elections.

In the light of events since the Korean outbreak, they now expect to pick up a minimum of 50 seats, more than enough to control the House in the next Congress.

An earlier GOP survey had brought claims of a net gain of at least 30 seats.

House Republican leader Martin would set no figure but said "there is no doubt about it; we will win control of the House in November."

GOP experts who report to Martin were the source of the new claims.

"We will pick up between 50 and 60 seats," one of them said privately. "Several months ago we would have settled for 30, but things are different now. The people are going to vote mainly against the party in power and that is the Democratic Party. They are discontented over the probability of higher taxes and increased living costs.

"In a situation like that, the people just naturally vote against the party in power. They figure a change is worth trying."

In the last off-year voting, in 1946, Democrats were swept out of control of both the House and the Senate. They regained control two years later in a presidential election year.

To win control of the House, Republicans must pick up 46 more seats than they now have. The present lineup is 262 Democrats, 172 Republicans and 1 American Laborite.

The figures include two Democratic and two Republican vacancies.

A majority of the House membership is 218.

Profits Tax In Demand, George Says

Public demand probably will force Congress to slap an excess profits tax on business next year, Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee said yesterday.

The Senate taxation leader, who personally holds that there are better ways of raising money, made his prediction to a reporter as the committee got ready to go to work Wednesday on 5 billion dollars of quick new levies proposed by President Truman to pay for the Korean war crisis.

Mr. Truman's list for the emergency tax does not include an excess profits tax. George said that while such a proposal is likely to come up in committee he does not expect the committee to approve it in connection with the current bill.

Meanwhile George picked up potent support in the committee for his opposition to Mr. Truman's idea of applying new higher corporation tax rates to all of such concerns' 1950 income. Senators Byrd (D., Va.) and Brewster (R., Me.) joined him in objecting to any carry-back of higher taxes.

George reiterated that he sees no reason why Congress won't approve a tax boost speedily.

Further Arrests in Atomic Espionage Ring Are Hinted

New York, July 30 (AP).—A chemical engineer and a tall, attractive blonde will be arraigned Monday on Federal conspiracy charges linking them with the Soviet spy ring that stole American atomic secrets.

The pair, Abraham Brothman, 36, and Miriam Moskowitz, 34, were indicted and arrested yesterday after grand jury testimony by Harry Gold, the Philadelphia chemist who has admitted giving the Russians atom data stolen by the British scientist, Dr. Klaus Fuchs.

There was a strong official hint that further arrests can be expected.

"We are working on some matters and this comes in the midst of them," said United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol. "We always have a grand jury sitting and we are starting to piece things together."

Brothman and Miss Moskowitz, a former employe of the War Manpower Commission in New York, are charged specifically with getting together with Gold and making up a false story for him to tell a Federal grand jury in 1947.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Gold and Brothman were connected with a Soviet spy apparatus headed by Semen H. Semenov, an official of the Russian trading organization Amtorg.

Brothman was named more than two years ago by Elizabeth Bentley, self-described former courier for Soviet spies, as a Russian agent who gave her plans, blueprints and other secret information.

In the indictments returned yesterday Brothman is charged with persuading and "intimidating" Gold into giving a false account of their meeting. Miss Moskowitz, longtime associate of Brothman's is accused of giving advice and counsel to the two men when they discussed the testimony Gold would give.

A second charge against Brothman alone is that he attempted to obstruct justice by persuading Gold to lie.

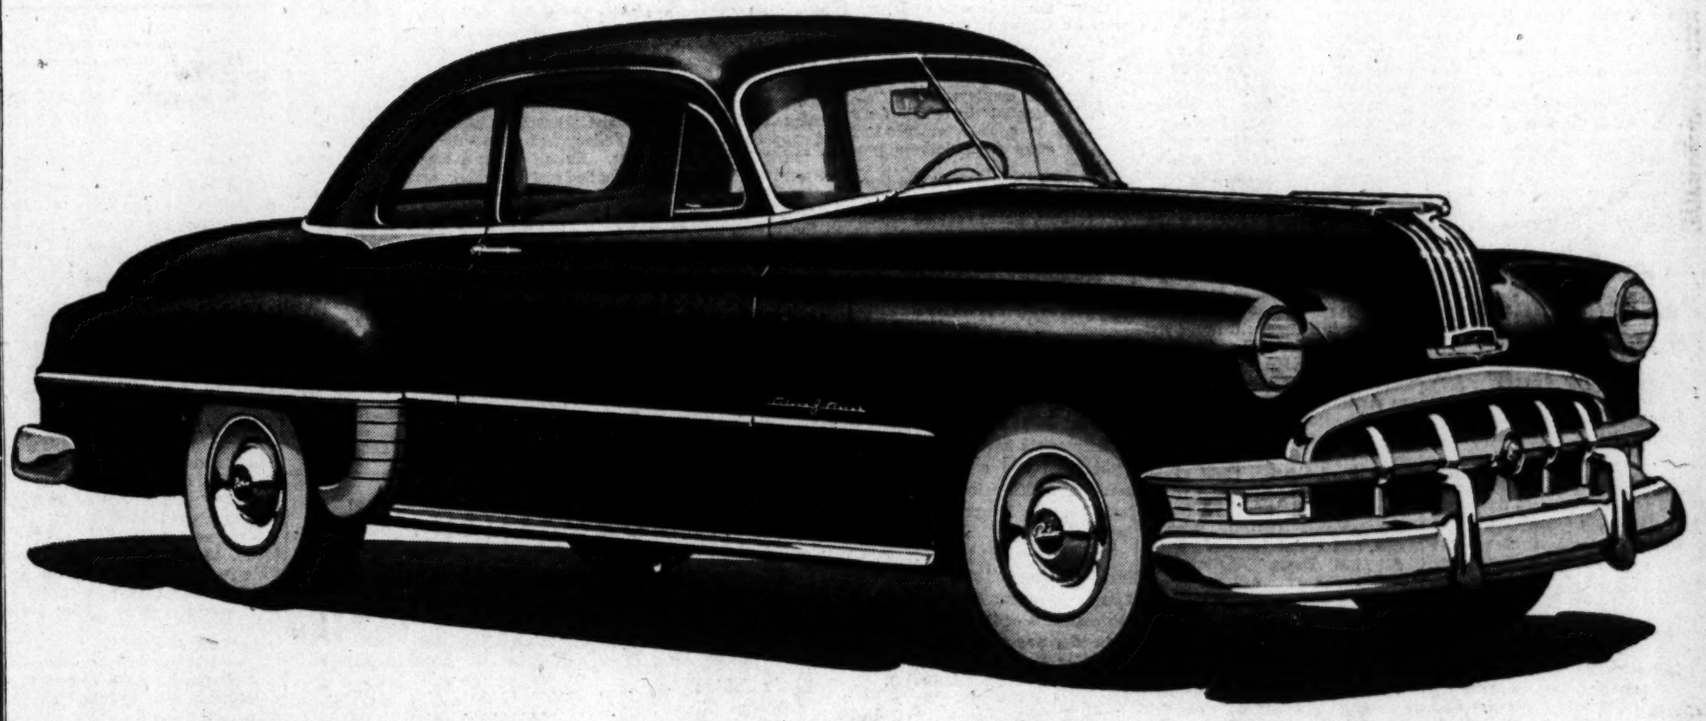
A Great Beauty—A Great Car!



All great beauties have one thing in common—the ability to stand strikingly apart from the crowd, to be instantly recognizable as something very special.

Certainly Pontiac has that distinction to a rare degree. Wherever you go, you see the new Pontiac, you are sharply aware that this one car asserts itself in any company. And yet, beautiful as Pontiac is, it has inner qualities which are even more desirable. Pontiac is built, from the bottom up, to be thoroughly good, to be an outstanding performer, a dependable, economical, completely satisfying car.

Yes, almost everybody knows that Pontiac is a great beauty. But only Pontiac owners really know that Pontiac is a great car in every way. You should be a Pontiac owner—dollar for dollar, you can't beat a Pontiac!

50 Superforts Blast Korea Industry Hub

Tokyo (Monday), July 31 (AP).—A force of nearly 50 U. S. Superforts bombed an important Communist chemical and explosives plant in North Korea today in one of the biggest Allied air assaults of the war.

An Air Force release said it was the third and most successful large-scale strategic air attack so far in the Korean fight.

Using radar to find their target through clouds, the big American B-29s let loose 500 tons of bombs on the chosen nitrogen chemical company plant at Hungnam.

Pilots said the bomb drops were followed by 15 large explosions that rocked the Superforts flying 15,000 feet above the target, on the east coast of Korea some 50 miles north of Wonsan.

Other B-29s of the Far East Air Force bomber command continued attacks designed to cut off North Korean supply and replacement channels. They struck bridges and other transportation targets from the Seoul area south to the fighting front.

Seoul is the fallen South Korean capital, approximately 30 miles south of the Thirty-eighth Parallel near the west coast.

Fifth Air Force B-26s, F-80 jets and F-5- Sustang fighters hammered at transportation lines, troop concentrations and other targets as they gave support to Allied ground troops.

Hungnam, where the B-29s struck, is 130 miles north of the Thirty-eighth Parallel.

Returning fliers said they heard and felt a "terrific explosion" after they dropped their bombs.

A veteran pilot, Col. Claude E. Putnam of Spokane, Wash., said of the explosion felt at 15,000 feet: "Most of us have fought a lot of war and never felt anything like that before."

A tail gunner, S/Sergt. Harvey Walton of Covington, Va., got a look at the target area through a break in clouds and reported he saw a big column of reddish brown smoke pouring skyward.

"It wasn't from the bombs," he said, "because that's black."

Others also reported seeing the red-brown smoke.

Jet fighter planes flew through bad weather to support ground forces.

The Third Bomb Group's B-26s struck bridges near Hadong and Kwangyang on the southern front. The B-26s also hit convoys and trucks in the Suwon area near Seoul with bombs and rockets. Some of the bombers met light antiaircraft fire, but suffered no serious damage.

'Stand' Order Shocks Officers Who Didn't Think of Leaving

By Homer Bigart

With American Forces in Korea (Monday), July 31 (NYHT).—Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker's order to stand or die on the present battle lines in Korea came as a profound shock to the bulk of his Eighth Army officers.

They had known, of course, that the situation was dangerous. But the prospect of staging a Dunkerque or Gallipoli had never really occured to them until General Walker told them to put the idea of evacuation out of their minds.

The worst that could happen, they felt, was a retreat to beachhead positions. There, at least, they could have their flanks anchored on the sea and there would be enough soldiers to man the shortened lines until the hour arrived for a general offensive.

Units Badly Spread Out

But the Walker order against yielding another inch made little sense if taken literally. The American units are still badly spread out with wide and vulnerable gaps in between. To make a final stand on the present haphazard positions would invite continued piecemeal destruction of the American force.

What the general meant was that there should be no further withdrawals in which some American units run like scared rabbits without inflicting much damage on the enemy. He told the officers that the conduct of American squads and platoons under fire left much to be desired.

The main trouble, most observers agree, is that this is a peacetime army composed mainly of youths who had no thought of fighting when they signed up. They are not combat-minded and it will take some time to make soldiers out of them.

Deficiencies in Materials

For the human deficiencies there is no one to blame. Americans like to go soft in peacetime. But there is no excuse for deficiencies in basic field materials. There has been a startling breakdown of communications at the front.

Some of the material is obsolete and some of the radios and much of the telephone wiring was discovered to be rotted by fungus after lying in storage for five years in Okinawa.

There have been a number of tactical mistakes, many of them resulting from basic original miscalculation—the underestimation of enemy strength. The Korean experience should produce a drastic reexamination of the work of American intelligence agencies.

Rioters Demand King Abdicate

an anti-Leopold "march on Brussels" by thousands of workers Monday but Buset said the march will "take place' in defiance of the decree.

In the Liege fighting, two other persons were wounded by gunfire when police opened fire on demonstrators who stormed one of their lines. Six other persons suffered injuries in the scuffle.

The deaths, first to result from the riots and sabotage that have created a state of near-anarchy in Belgium since Leopold returned to his throne July 22, came as the Ministry of Interior published an "extraordinary decree" ordering road blocks on every highway leading into the capital.

The ministry ordered police, troops and armor deployed around historic Waterloo to stop the march of the "citizens army" from Walloonia scheduled to begin Monday. Socialist-led strike committees announced their anti-Leopold brigades will pour into Brussels in flying columns of motorcycles, buses and trucks.

Brussels itself was in a virtual state of siege as police and soldiers began to set up the road blocks.

In Liege black-helmeted state police panicked and opened fire on anti-Leopold strikers who stormed a police line, demanding the King's abdication.

The arrest of Socialist Deputy Simon Paques, who hurled insults at police while he led a chanting anti-Leopoldist throng, touched off the clash. Two workers fell dead in the streets. The third died later in a hospital, officials said.

A spokesman for the ministry of Interior in Brussels declared the order to open fire was "a mistake."

At dawn today a bomb blasted off the main gate of the Ministry of Justice in this capital city.

Quiet returned to Liege, at least for the moment, after police arrested the mayor of suburban Grace-Berleu, where the shootings occurred. He also was one of those hurt in the clash. Earlier armored columns recalled from Germany rumbled into Liege.

Paul-Henri Spaak, Socialist and former premier, has warned that the Nation faces the possibility of civil war unless the monarch gives up his throne to his eldest son, Crown Prince Baudouin.

Russians Still Mum on Plans After Return to U. N. Council

Lake Success, July 30 (AP).—Russian silence continued today on what they plan to do when they come back to the Security Council Tuesday.

Jacob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister and Council president for August, still withheld the program of business for the Tuesday meeting. U. N. officials confessed they don't know when he'll tell them what he intends to bring up.

The Soviet press in Moscow also lapsed back into silence after announcing briefly to the Russians for the first time yesterday that Malik was ending a Council boycott begun last January.

The Big Three—France, Britain and the United States—wound up strategy conferences Saturday with Arne Sunde of Norway, July Council president. Representatives have studied what Malik may do and arranged to meet whatever play he makes.

A United States draft was being studied by council delegates over the weekend. It would provide for economic aid to as many as one million South Koreans estimated uprooted by the Korean conflict, to be administered in its early stages by the unified command in Washington and Tokyo.

Dispatches from Moscow reported diplomatic circles there believe Malik will call on the Council to rescind all its actions on Korea, demand removal of the U. N. flag from Korea, and insist that the Council prohibit the use of the U. N. name for forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Reds Would Be Aimed at Japan But for U. N. Action, Rhee Says

Taegu, July 30 (U.P.).—South Korean President Syngman Rhee said today that if the United Nations had not sent military aid to his homeland North Korea Reds now would be preparing to attack Japan.

Rhee spoke at a public meeting to celebrate the creation of the U. N.'s police force against aggression, which was attended by the U. N. Commission on Korea.

"Cruel as it has been for us to surrender territory for the time being, we have been able to afford more if necessary, while the enemy cannot afford to surrender even one more day of time," the 75-year-old president said. "We can recapture lost territory but the enemy cannot ever recapture an hour of time from his crimson timetable of conquest."

But for U. N. police action, he said, the North Korean Communists even now would be in the port of Pusan preparing their "next attack on innocent people against neighboring Japan."

Rhee spoke before a select audience in a dingy theater in this refugee capital. Crowds lined the streets outside to hear his speech over a public address system.

'Fire May Spread'

Attlee Calls On British to Spur Defense

London, July 30 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Attlee said today that Communists everywhere are conspiring to "sweep democracy and liberty from the world," and told Britons to prepare to defend themselves and their freedoms.

In a blunt attack on world-wide Communist designs, Attlee told a Commonwealth radio audience that Russia "talks peace but has immense forces under arms which cast the shadow of fear over all other peoples."

It was Attlee's first broadcast on foreign policy in five years.

Declared Conspiracy

He said the aggression by "evil forces" in South Korea was a conspiracy against "the way of life of free democracies."

Communists all over the world, he said, are engaged in an attempt "to mould the whole world to their pattern of tyranny." He called them "ruthless and unscrupulous hypocrites."

"They seek to sweep democracy and liberty from the world," Attlee said. "They are ready to destroy our lives if we do not agree with them. They talk of freedom while they murder it. They talk of peace while they support aggression."

The Labor Premier praised the fast American action in entering the battle against Communism in Korea.

"All honor to her (the United States)," he added, "and to the brave men who are fighting there."

May Burn Down House

The Premier warned his countrymen that "the fire that has been started in distant Korea may burn down your house."

The dispatch of Australian, New Zealand and British troops to Korea, he said, was proof of how the Commonwealth stands together when freedom, democracy and peace are threatened.

Attlee said:

"Communists, whether they make war in Korea or cause disruption in Malaya, India or Burma, whether they destroy the liberties of the Czechs or the Poles, or try to wreck the economic recovery of Britain or France or Australia, are all engaged in an attempt to mold the whole world to their pattern of tyranny . . .

Attlee called on every man and woman who can do so to volunteer for extra defense work; warning of sabotage dangers he asked Britons to beware of the "enemy within."

He said the regular armed forces will need more skilled men in the navy, the army and the air force.

Attlee asked workers and employers alike to turn every effort to increase production so Britain can handle the task of making weapons and still try to keep up domestic output.

But he warned that austere Britain is going to be even more austere.

Everything at Steak!

ONE OF my favorite people is Stanley Rideout, cab driver. Stanley, a man of considerable perspicacity, said to me, "I see you write a column in The Post. Why don't you tell people about cab drivers?" It seems that everything has gone up since the last fare increase was granted. Cabs cost twice as much; gasoline is up 50%. Drivers, said Stanley, can't do more than pay operating overhead from their fares, and have to depend on their tips for their living. Tips, strangely, are confined largely to 5c and 10c gratuities; the 15c which New Yorkers consider minimum are red-letter occurrences here. "The trouble is," says Stanley, 'people don't realize how much we depend on our tips. If they knew the facts, they'd tip more!" I reminded Stanley that my column is a food column. "How," I asked, "can I justify such an item?" Stanley was quick on the up-take. "Food?" he cried. "Heck, cab drivers gotta eat too!" I think Stanley's got something. From now on, I'm going to be a twenty-center, every time. Will you join me?

Steaks! Steaks! Steaks!

Although beef is the traditionally favorite meat of Americans, it is surprising how few cooks, amateur or professional, know how to prepare it properly. Farm folk appear to be the least competent. The rural tendency is to cook the juices out, and thus rob the beef of its fine flavor and natural tenderness. The prime rule in our kitchen is keep it juicy! Well done or rare, our filet mignon is always juicy, flavorful and tender. We cut our own filets from the finest tenderloin. Each one is thick and naturally juicy, aged to the perfect peak of succulent flavor and buttery tenderness. Before plunging yours into the broiler (to your individual order) our chef dips it in a "searing sauce" . . . a subtly-flavored blend of sweet oil and delicious herbs and spices. This seals the juices in; the hot flame merely sets them to bubbling furiously inside the filet as it broils to the exact degree of your preference. When it is set before you in all its savory glory, redolent under a blanket of mushroom-and-wine sauce, your filet has not lost so much as an ounce of its rich, flavorful juice. Spear it with your fork, plunge your knife into it . . . and see how the juice tumbles out in ruby rivulets, each steaming bubble flecked with tiny spots of golden fat! Once you have partaken of a filet mignon cooked the toothsome Parchey way, I'll warrant that if any other method has previously been used in your home, "there'll be some changes made" from then on. Why not make it tonight? Our address: 19th at K St., N. W.

Steaks! Steaks! Steaks!

Our card tray is weighty with the names of these old friends who have revisited us during the past weeks: Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hensley; Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Henderson; Mr. and Mrs. Barron K. Grier; Mr. R. W. Hartley; Mr. E. H. Welch; Mr. Thomas J. Browning, among many others. New friends we have been happy to greet included Lt. Cmdr. N. J. Arts, U. S. N.; Capt. and Mrs. C. P. Archambeault, M. C., U. S. N., Lt. Col. R. W. Jenna, U. S. A. and his two charming children; Mr. and Mrs. S. MacCarthy; Mr. John P. Smith; Mrs. Gale R. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Searle. Come again soon!

Traditionally, the oyster-raising Marylander is no great partisan of the clam. Yet I have noticed any number of our Maryland patrons ordering Parchey's Cherrystone Clam cocktails recently. You can spot a Marylander by the way he eats his clams. After spearing and munching the meat, he lifts the shell to his lips and drinks deep of the tangy, appetizing juice. (We are always extra careful in opening clams to your order, to preserve as much juice as possible.) I recently asked one of my Maryland friends "How come you're eating a Cherrystone Clam cocktail? Isn't that treason in Maryland?" He was not abashed. "Your Cherrystones seem to be richer and more succulent this year than ever," he said. "In fact, they're almost as good as oysters. And I get all this good cocktail sauce and saltiness for my fifty cents, besides!" That's rare praise, indeed, from a devotee of the oyster. And he's absolutely right when he says the Cherrystones are especially fine this year. Come in and try them. Our address: 19th at K, N. W.

Standby Control Setup Urged By 15 GOP House Members

The free nations of the world, therefore, can expect a series of such outbreaks at the several points of friction at which the free and Soviet worlds come into physical contact.

"This conflict will not be resolved either quickly or easily, and will require a large measure of sacrifice by all freedom-loving peoples. Given adequate and trustworthy leadership, they will meet this challenge.

"The responsibility is not alone the burden of the United States. Circumstances have necessitated immediate action by this country. Leadership is in our hands at this time. But, all free nations must be prepared to implement further the decisions of the United Nations. Each must, with vigor and determination, contribute men and resources according to its ability.

"The problem is twofold. The immediate objective is the successful repulse of the Communist aggression in Korea. The ultimate objective must be peace in a free world. This goal can only be achieved by military strength and a firm and consistent policy both foreign and domestic. Evident Communist aims for world domination make this fact inescapable."

Modern war requires "equal sharing of the burden of war by all citizens," the statement said. The possibility of total war calls for plans to be drawn now "of all the resources of the Nation" and it is "essential" that stand-by legislation be enacted "providing in detail for the total mobilization of American manpower, industry and resources for the civilian and military defense of the Nation."

The statement was in effect an indorsement of the plea last week by Bernard Baruch for all-inclusive legislation.

The GOP House members in calling for price-wage-profit-rent controls on a standby basis, did not go into details as to the levels at which they should be frozen. They did call for paring nondefense spending and higher taxes at once "on income and profits" to avoid deficits. Both "excessive profits and excessive income" should be prevented by such tax measures, the Republicans said.

Other measures called for by the 15 House members included building up the Marine Corps, the reserve and the National Guard; keeping "an adequate number of ships and shipyards" available; an "armament readiness program"; censorship at once "on all troops and naval distributions and movements."

Also urged were Government surplus food stocks to stabilize prices; stepped-up civilian defense and a law requiring registration of Communists and increasing sabotage and espionage penalties.

Finally, the Congressmen said Congress should remain in session. One reason, they said, would be to keep a check on the President and the executive branch in their use of the new powers.

The battle over giving Mr. Truman more power to fight inflation than he has asked for is expected to be the week's highlight at the Capitol. Congressional leaders are expected to discuss the legislative ground swell with the President at their regular Monday conference this morning.

The House on Tuesday will take up the limited mobilization bill offered by the Administration. The Senate Banking Committee will hear Senator Taft (R., Ohio) offer advice almost the opposite of that of the 15 House Republicans. He will call, not for more controls, but for a cut in what the Administration bill contains in allocation, priority and credit controls. House GOP leaders have a meeting scheduled on the problem for Tuesday morning.

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) in a radio talk last night said he thought Baruch "may have the better" of the argument over how much controls. Tydings' suggestion was to take the Truman plan immediately "and consider how much more to adopt along the lines that Mr. Baruch has offered."

A pledge of help in the fight aganist panic buying and hoarding came, meanwhile, from the National Institute of Governmental Purchasing, Inc., an organization of State and local government purchasing agents. It also promised "strict conformance" to any priorities and allocation scheme enacted.

Labor Conservation Is Asked

can be given needed manpower "if the Employment Service is given the whole-hearted cooperation of both employers and workers."

He also gave out portions of a new manpower study made by his right-hand manpower official, Robert C. Goodwin.

Goodwin's report says:

In plant capacity and workers' skills we are in better shape than in 1940.

We are worse off in having a smaller pool of unemployed workers, and in population changes that have left us (a) fewer people between 14 and 24 years old; (b) more young women with little children to care for; (c) a larger proportion of people over 55.

That our resources for expanding the armed services and the labor force are:

1. The 3,400,000 unemployed. We can draw 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 from this source. (Even in "full employment" there are always some people in movement between jobs.)

2. Women. At present they make up about 30 percent of the labor force. In wartime—in 1943—the average was 34 percent.

3. Youths. Selective Service will get some of these; job vacancies will attract others.

4. Older workers. We can draw on more of them, though there's already a larger proportion of them working than in 1940.

5: We can increase factory hours. Now they average about 40 a week; in World War II they averaged 46.

6. We can cut down on civilian production workers from 15 to 20 days, and sick leave from 10 to 12 days a year.

Furthermore, the Douglas-Williams-Kem rider would make these additional reductions:

1. Most non-defense agencies, including the Post Office Department, would be limited to the filling of only half of their vacated jobs;

2. These same agencies would be given a 5-percent cut in funds recommended by the President to pay salaries;

3. The Budget Bureau would be instructed to cut half a billion dollars from the budget as finally approved by Congress from funds carried for civilian construction such as flood control, reclamation, river, harbor, and navigation, and public road projects, and, finally,

4. A minimum of another half-billion would be saved by directing the Budget Bureau to make a proportionate cut among most non-defense agencies in funds earmarked for travel, communications, transportation, rent, printing, personnel, and other such services.

Douglas described his amendment as a "sharp meat ax wielded with care." He said it was preferable to a "blunt meat ax of an across-the-board percentage cut," but he admitted "the surgeon's knife approach of carefully cutting individual items is the best approach."

But the Illinois Senator said he was forced to resort to the "good old meat ax" because the Senate had rejected 68 different proposals he had made to cut the fat from the budget with an extremely sharp surgeon's knife. He explained:

"Almost every time I start to apply the knife, sharp and delicate though it is, the Senate has gently but no less definitely placed a sheath over the blade. 'Put that thing down,' they say, 'you're liable to hurt somebody.'"

By indirection, Douglas poked fun at his colleagues who are given popular credit for standing for economy in Government but who refused to support specific budget cuts because they were afraid of arousing the opposition of special interests.

Douglas estimated the actual personnel reduction in the nondefense agencies would be close to 12 percent, and average out at 10 percent by including Postoffice. His plan to readjust leave, he said, would have the effect of requiring classified and per-diem people to work 3 percent more a year, but the postal employes would work 1 percent less annually. The agencies covered, he said, could easily reduce personnel 2 percent by firing the most inefficient.

The leave rider, he explained, would apply to all employes, defense as well as non-defense. "This would increase the manpower in the Defense Department and other agencies that are vital to national defense." He put up this argument in favor of his leave rider:

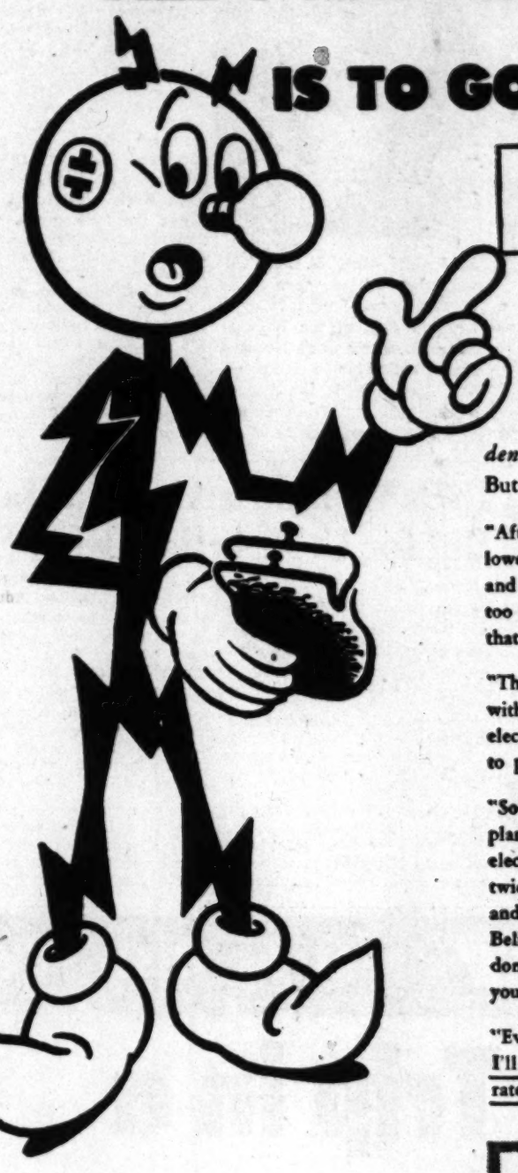
"Twenty days, or one month with weekends, is long enough for a vacation, and it is still very liberal in comparison with that given by private employers. This would still be better than the leave given by 99 44/100 percent of private employers.

"The present 26 days is excessive, because that number of days, on the basis of a 5-day week, is 5 1/5 weeks. When there are added 15 days of sick leave, which makes 41 days, and eight holidays, making 49 days, plus the other days of leave on occasions of visits of Brazilian and other presidents, and when the weather is hot, the total leave given to Government workers is much larger than appears on its face. It is unjustified at any time, and certainly in a period which is close to a national emergency."

The Douglas-Williams-Kem plan to deny either annual or sick leave to employes until they have served continuously for at least one full calendar year is something new. Many thousands of new people are being recruited by the war agencies and the rider, if approved, would undoubtedly slow down this expansion. New per-diem and classified employes are given 26 days' annual and up to 15 days of sick leave, the same as older workers.

The Administration is lining up its forces in an effort to kill the Douglas-Williams-Kem amendment.

"ALL I AM ASKING, FOLKS, IS TO GO BACK TO MY 1940 WAGES"



"Going back to the wages you paid me in 1940 may not sound like much to you —it would only cost my average residential customer less than a penny a day more. But even 1940 looks good to me now!

"After all, I'm used to working around here for one of the lowest electric rates in the Nation. Been doing it for years and years, for less and less. Back in 1948 when things got too tough you gave me my only raise in 28 years, but that just met a part of the increase in my coal bill.

"The post-war increase in demand for electric service, with both old and new customers using more and more electricity, meant just one thing: Provide more facilities to produce more electricity FAST!

"So plunk! Out went $50,000,000 for a giant new generating plant and other necessary equipment. This plant produces electricity at top efficiency. But the fact remains, it cost almost twice what it would have cost to build it in pre-war years and I couldn't wait for construction costs to come down. Believe me, that was an undertaking! But it had to be done—to assure you of 'Matchless Service' and fully meet your complete electric needs—now and for the future.

"Even with the increased wages I'm asking, I'll still be working for one of the lowest residential rates in the Nation."

Phillips' Said It For Years....

NOW READER'S DIGEST CONFIRMS:

Mouth Acids Cause Tooth Decay!

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA TOOTH PASTE NEUTRALIZES MOUTH ACIDS—ON CONTACT

—because it contains one of the fastest, most effective acid neutralizers known!

Now there can be no doubt about what kind of tooth paste you should use!

Mouth acids cause tooth decay! This fact—which the makers of Phillips' Tooth Paste have been telling to all America for years—is now confirmed by Reader's Digest in an article entitled "A Sensible Way To Lessen Tooth Decay".

This Reader's Digest article also reveals that scientific tests indicate that tooth decay can be reduced 50% to 60% —by brushing your teeth and combatting these mouth acids after each meal.

This leaves no room for doubt about what kind of tooth paste you—and everyone in your family—should use. It makes it vividly clear that what you need is a tooth paste that will combat mouth acids—and do it effectively.

That means Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tooth Paste! For Phillips' Tooth Paste actually neutralizes mouth acids —neutralizes them on contact!

Yes—Phillips' Tooth Paste neutralizes mouth acids on contact. And the reason is that Phillips' Tooth Paste contains one of the fastest, most effective acid neutralizers known.

So don't let mouth acids destroy your teeth. Today, get a tube of cool, minty tasting Phillips' Tooth Paste and see for yourself how effectively it helps prevent tooth decay.

Phillips' Tooth Paste is available in 3 sizes—Medium, Large and the new, money saving Economy size.

EVERYONE HAS MOUTH ACIDS!

Reader's Digest says: "Tooth decay is not a steady wearing-away process like water dripping on stone. It is the result of a series of violent and rapid acid attacks on the teeth, each attack being like a chisel blow, nicking away a tiny speck of enamel." These acids—which cause painful, expensive cavities—develop almost invariably in everyone's mouth right after eating. Because of this, everyone in your family—children and grownups alike—should use Phillips' Tooth Paste immediately after each meal. For Phillips' Tooth Paste neutralizes these mouth acids—on contact!

Reds Hit Heavily at Chinju

night and the Reds counterattacked. Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commander of the First Cavalry, ordered the Americans to "counterattack the enemy's counterattack."

If the North Koreans are able to exploit their entrance of Hamchang into a real breakthrough they may force realignment of the entire line in this sector.

The town is dead center in the American-South Korean line arcing from the Andong-Hechon area in the northeast to the front just ahead of Kumchon. Kumchon is on the main highway and rail routes to Taegu, 32 miles southeast, and on to Pusan.

Hamchang has been the anchor on the American right and the South Korean left. Pressure has been relatively light so far on the right flank of the U. S. Twenty-fifth Division and the South Koreans have been getting the heavier weight of the Red assault in this sector.

Possession of both Hamchang and Chinju would give the Reds better attacking terrain for what apparently is their effort for a quick knockout blow.

Reds Bring Reinforcements

Hamchang, situated on high ground, has a favorable approach to Taegu down the main United States supply corridor toward Pusan. Likewise, Chinju is the gateway to the plain that opens to Pusan from the west.

Fresh American troops had been brought into the Chinju area but an Air Force spokesman in Korea said the Reds were moving up heavy concentrations along the entire battle line. He estimated these reinforcements at perhaps 10,000 men for the nine North Korean divisions already in action.

General MacArthur's headquarters—which without explanation issued no fighting summary early Monday morning—estimated the Reds had built up their invasion army to 200,000 men. This was done, headquarters said, through "frantic mobilization" in a desperate effort to gain a quick knockout.

A headquarters officer told the Associated Press the North Koreans would have to obtain their battle decision "in two days."

He said this was due to the buildup in American strength and reduction of Communist striking power.

The headquarters officer expressed confidence the Americans could hold off and turn back the massive "climactic" Red thrust along the entire line.

Battled to a standstill in attempts to storm the First Cavalry Division positions in the center of the line, the Reds aimed a Sunday punch in a double-barreled sweep around the south flank.

A field dispatch from Boyle said both drives were halted temporarily by Americans who moved 60 miles to plug the gaping hole in the defenses.

Identity of these Americans was not disclosed.

((They presumably were elements of the battered Twenty-fourth Division, which has not been listed in action since it bore the brunt of the delaying battle from Suwon through Taejon in the first month of the war.)

Correspondent Boyle reported the Reds captured Kochang before noon Saturday after a two-day battle forced back an American regiment to avoid envelopment.

The Americans retired to the hills eastward and dug in as the Reds massed for a new armor-tipped drive.

South Korean troops went into action in this sector for the first time to bolster the thinly spread American line.

American artillery was hurried into position to meet the increasingly grave southern thrust. Both Air Force and carrier planes gave strong support.

An exasperated American division commander, ordering up more artillery for the defense of Chinju, told Boyle, "It's the same old story. They hit you frontally and then go around your flank until they get the rear. Then you have to pull back or get cut off."

A fast-moving Communist column, trying to bring Chinju under direct attack, by-passed American positions on high ground east of the town, headquarters spokesman acknowledged.

Planes Pound Convoys

The Reds were placed by aerial observers about four to five miles outside of Chinju, which means they were just within 60 miles of vital Pusan.

Rocket-blazing jet and Mustang fighters continued to hammer at Red convoys which streamed eastward over the Hadong-Chinju highway.

They caught one big convoy at Ponggye, 10 miles east of Chinju and raked it with fire. Other strikes previously had left Hadong and Kochang blazing.

After three days of vain assaults on First Cavalry Division positions, the Reds tried a new angle of approach from the south. This was the threat aimed northward from Kochang which lies on a railroad running to Kumchon at the back of First Calvary positions.

The First Cavalry Division wheeled to meet the new threat to its southern flank, and swung its defenses astride the main Kochang-Kumchon highway. This was the road along which Red forces of undetermined strength were pushing.

4 More Nations Send Naval Units to Korea

Tokyo (Monday), July 31 (U.P.)—Vice Admiral Charles T. Joy, commander of U. S. naval forces in the Far East, announced today that warships of France, Canada, the Netherlands and New Zealand have joined U. N. forces participating against the North Korean Communist invaders of South Korea.

Naval units of the United States, Britain and Australia have been on duty in Japanese and Korean waters since the Korean war began.

and Navy air arm formations, when, as a matter of fact, no North Korean planes have been sighted for days.

It is the estimate of American military intelligence that the North Koreans have lost more than 80 airplanes, practically their entire air force. North Korean ground troop losses are, according to these estimates, between 30,000 and 35,000 killed or wounded. Mobilization in North Korea is described as feverish, and pistol-point recruiting in occupied areas of South Korea have brought the enemy forces to about the 200,000 mark.

Several North Korean divisions are known to be badly mauled by the stiffening American ground resistance, and others are considered unreliable by American observers. It is known that some of the newer units have not been assembled into divisions but employed piecemeal.

Of approximately 300 Russian-built tanks with which the North Koreans now are believed to have started the invasion, 170 are considered to have been destroyed and 100 damaged. Intelligence officers point out that where clusters of 30 enemy tanks were common two weeks ago, groups of four and five are the order today.

North Korean tanks of the Russian T-34 type have been carrying two extra 30-gallon gasoline drums and are good for roughly one week of operations, including some combat, without refueling. Although the heavy tank losses have lessened their fuel supply problems, it is believed that actual fuel shortages soon may result from the air attrition program.

There are no indications the Soviet Union is sending any new supplies of men or materiel to North Korea, according to intelligence sources here. If the North Koreans have any sizeable reserves the United States does not know where they are.

Jehovah's Witnesses Meet in Ball Park

New York, July 30 (U.P.)—Some 60,000 delegates from 67 nations jammed into Yankee Stadium today as the eight-day international assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses began.

Sipping bottled pop and munching sandwiches just like baseball patrons, convention delegates filed to their seats and heard speakers preach from a platform erected just above second base. A first-aid station behind the stadium treated some 500 witnesses, mostly for heat exhaustion.

Doctors to Get List Of Ambulance Planes

Doctors and hospitals all over the country will get a list of ambulance planes and how to reach their pilots in emergencies, the Civil Aeronautics Administration announced yesterday.

The CAA said there are more than 350 "mercy planes" distributed through all States and Alaska and Hawaii.

COFFEE Quiz by EDWIN C. HILL

Who insisted upon brewing his own coffee?
Dickens Conrad
Zola Balzac
Balzac (1799-1850). He loved good coffee, had his own special blend and often made a half-day's trip to the other side of Paris to buy it.

How much coffee do Americans use per year?
12.5 lbs. 19.5 lbs.
9 lbs. 13.2 lbs.
Each of us now uses about 19.5 pounds annually. Ten years ago, we were using 15.5 pounds; 20 years ago, 12.7 pounds. Coffee is our beverage!

How much do other nations pay for coffee?
$1.15 per lb. $1.27
$1.20
Well, the Italians, for example, pay up to $1.27 a pound for coffee. They are very fond of coffee and they always prefer a "dark roast."

What do you pay for a cup of coffee?
about 10¢ about 2¢
about 13¢
You pay about 2 pennies for a cup of rich, fragrant, home-brewed coffee. Coffee is thrifty—so make it full strength and enjoy it!

NOTHING SATISFIES LIKE COFFEE . . .
YET IT COSTS JUST ABOUT 2¢ A CUP

Here are the answers to your questions about

Marie Earle Araline

The most sensational home beauty treatment in a generation

Q. What is ARALINE?
A. ARALINE by Marie Earle is an utterly new and revolutionary beauty treatment. It consists of a single lotion, which is to be applied according to a specified method. The lotion is a combination of astringents and fine oils, so that while it stimulates and helps to wake up lazy muscles still it never dries or draws the skin. It is not a hormone preparation.

Q. What can ARALINE do for me?
A. When used in accordance with the Marie Earle ARALINE Method of application, ARALINE will help to brighten and lighten your skin; improve its texture; give you a younger, healthier appearance. It will help to wear away puffiness, correct and firm the contours of face and neck. Don't say this sounds too good to be true... truly amazing results can be attained. Never before has a new beauty treatment received such wide acclaim, from cautious editors, as well as women users.

Q. What is the Marie Earle ARALINE Method?
A. The beauty of the ARALINE method of application is its simplicity. No fancy equipment is necessary, no array of preparations. The ARALINE lotion is applied with an egg-sized cotton pad, with movements designed to stimulate circulation, tone up sagging muscles, wear away puffiness. You'll quickly learn the routine, working on the five important "trouble spots" where signs of the years first show—the neck, the cheek, the brow, the chin, the jowls. Easy-to-follow directions, with diagrams, are enclosed with each bottle of ARALINE.

Q. How long does a treatment take?
A. Ten minutes, that's all the time it takes to apply ARALINE each day by the Marie Earle Method. Then, if possible, it is suggested that you allow the ARALINE to remain on your skin awhile longer, or even overnight.

Q. How soon can I expect results?
A. If you follow the method regularly, normally your skin should look brighter, livelier, and improve in texture within a few days. After a few weeks, you should find additional improvement which will delight and amaze you . . and your friends will notice, too.

Q. Does ARALINE suit all skins?
A. There are two types of ARALINE. No. 1 for dry or normal skins. No. 2 for oily skins and other problem skins.

Q. Is the ARALINE treatment costly?
A. What price can be put on beauty? Marie Earle ARALINE may be had in single bottle at $6, which is suggested as an initial purchase. Once you have seen what ARALINE can do for you, you'll probably wish to purchase the 4-bottle package, $18. All prices include Federal tax.

Q. Where can I get this sensational ARALINE?
A. At Woodward & Lothrop, Toiletries, Aisle 14, First Floor. Ask for the Marie Earle consultant, who will be happy to give you further information about this delightful way to a younger, lovelier appearance.

Aid to Schools

The House Labor Committee has not yet said that the bill it reported out to aid school construction in communities overrun by Government workers is an emergency measure. But we assume that it will do so, and that such a claim will be fully justified. To be sure, the need for the bill was acute before the war in Korea aroused the Nation to the necessity of building a larger defense establishment. But what was previously a national responsibility has now become an urgent part of the effort to meet a new national emergency. Experience in World War II proved that many workers are reluctant to take wartime jobs in cities or towns that cannot provide education for their children. Since most of the communities that are suddenly burdened by an influx of Federal workers cannot provide new school buildings from their own resources, it is a question of giving them governmental aid or impeding the defense effort.

Previously the House had passed by a voice vote the bill providing 35 million dollars for the maintenance and operation of schools in the so-called critical areas. The reasoning behind both measures is that the Federal Government itself has placed an extraordinary burden upon some local communities and consequently should share the expense of making the necessary adjustments. Fortunately, this principle seems to have general acceptance and the outlook for enactment of both measures appears to be good.

Important as these bills are, it would be a serious mistake to assume that their enactment would dispose of the difficulties confronting the schools. States, cities, and local school boards will also have to arouse themselves if the tragic neglect of education during World War II is not to be repeated—if the schools are not to be overwhelmed by the war babies who will be seeking admission to classrooms in all parts of the country this fall. As new demands for workers are pressed, are we again to witness an exodus of teachers from the schools? In our opinion, the emergency resulting from the invasion of South Korea does not justify any relaxation of educational efforts. But school authorities will have to be forehanded if the mistakes of the early forties are not to be repeated. It is time for the whole country to realize that education is a vital part of our national strength and to act accordingly.

Check On Hoarding

Hard on the heels of an increase of 350,000 tons in sugar marketing quotas, most of which will come from Cuba, the Government has purchased Cuba's remaining sugar stocks of about 600,000 tons. With these additional supplies, the amount of sugar available for consumption this year will be 8,450,000 tons as compared with the 1941 record consumption total of 7.9 million tons—also a year of scarce buying and hoarding. The extent of the current panic buying is reflected in the abnormally large amounts of sugar distributed by refiners, beet processors and importers. In the week ended July 15, 322,000 tons of sugar "disappeared"—as compared with an average distributive total of about 144,000 tons. The following week consumption declined, but was still running at about twice the normal rate. Obviously, available supplies cannot be stretched to satisfy such abnormally heavy demands for long.

However, there is a bright side to the picture: scarce buying has increased stocks in the hands of consumers and these accumulations, together with the steps taken to increase supplies, will act as a check on the activities of even the most frenetic hoarders. But if hoarding continues in spite of official assurances that there is more than enough sugar to meet normal demands, rationing at consumer levels will be a last resort.

If the Government had suspended all marketing quotas at the start of scarce buying, as was done temporarily following the outbreak of war in Europe, such action, coming as a surprise, might have put an effective check on speculative buying and hoarding. Under present conditions, however, with prices mounting and stocks going into hiding, the lifting of quotas would, no doubt, stimulate speculation and there is no assurance that it would prevent further increases in sugar prices. On the other hand, outright purchase of Cuban sugar has the advantage not only of increasing available supplies, but of enabling the Government to put pressure on prices by reselling its stocks at the prices paid for them.

Consent Censorship

What the American people and the American press wish to have in their news reports from Korea is all the information that can be obtained without endangering the armed forces. The efforts to gain this information about the Korean campaign in the past few weeks have resulted in some security risks that should have been avoided and in some obstruction of the press that had nothing to do with the maintenance of security.

The anxieties and the worries over the outcome of the campaign itself overshadow any other difficulties that are faced at this moment. There is very little "worrying capacity" left over after taking care of this central concern. In the long run, however, a better solution to the information-security problem must be found. General MacArthur does not believe that conventional combat theater censorship of news dispatches is the answer. His dislike of censorship is all to his credit. His subordinates, however, have practiced a form of censorship by criticism, obstruction and complaint that is as irritating to the press as it is ineffectual in concealing from the enemy information that might be useful to them. Censorship by obstruction and harassment of reporters can be more objectionable than more frank and openly practiced censorship of reporters' copy. The former, in effect, is the kind of censorship that has prevailed in Korea.

At the same time, military information that should have been kept more secure, has been allowed to appear in print. The premature release of the information about the landing of the First Division might have been harmful. The disclosure of the departure of some troops from Okinawa was regrettable. This seemed so plainly of service to the enemy that some newspapers deliberately withheld the report. Such precautions on the part of a few newspapers, however, are futile. They deprive the readers of something without depriving the enemy of anything. The decisions of editors, moreover, must be made thousands of miles from the scene, and in view of the handicaps of time, distance and ignorance of the immediate issues, these decisions are preordained to be foolishly overcautious or unintentionally risky.

If this dilemma is to be avoided, military authorities on the spot must advise reporters what information can be printed without endangering military security. It is bootless to tell reporters, after a story has been printed, that the news it contained was dangerous and helpful to the enemy. It is idle to exhort writers to avoid anything that would be helpful to the foe. The press should be and surely will be the last to ask for censorship that goes one step beyond the restraints dictated solely by security. Responsible newspapers and responsible newspapermen, however, must be nearly unanimous in their desire to have qualified military personnel on the scene, in the combat theater, advise them when any story threatens the security of our troops.

This can be accomplished without conventional censorship. The Far East Command, without delay, should set up, down to the lowest feasible level, competent military experts able and ready to advise every combat theater correspondent on security problems. Copy could be submitted to these officers for advice on the security issues raised by a story. If General MacArthur wishes to avoid censorship, let the reporter be free to accept or reject the advice, at least for an experimental period. It goes without saying that the overwhelming majority of them, in the overwhelming number of cases, would take the technical advice provided. Their freedom to reject it would protect the people and the press against the overzealous individual officer guilty of attempting to suppress information that could be safely passed. The compulsions of patriotism and responsibility would assure that no reporter would lightly disregard the military opinion on a security issue.

There are two weaknesses in such a system of "consent censorship." One is the irresponsible reporter. The other is the unqualified military advisor. One is within the remedy of the newspaper. The other is within the reach of the military. So long as such remedies are available, these weaknesses ought to be subject to correction. There are available plenty of responsible reporters who understand the issues of security and information. There are as many qualified officers recommended for such duty by experience in World War II.

Such a procedure would put an end to the purposeless controversy and querulous second guessing that has forwarded no one's interest and has neither served to get the news out or keep classified secrets in. Unless some kind of order is brought out of the present confusion, the press and the military are going to be subjected to reproach either for disseminating military secrets or for withholding information the people ought to have, or for both.

Reinstatement Order

The NLRB has ordered the reinstatement, with reimbursal for lost wages, of Lloyd Sidener, president of an Illinois local of the United Mine Workers. Mr. Sidener was fined $50,000 by his union and fired by his employer, at union insistence, during the coal strike last March after he had tried to persuade the miners to follow John L. Lewis' instructions to obey a court back-to-work order. The NLRB held that both the union and the company had violated the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act forbidding coercion of employes exercising their right to engage in union activities and prohibiting employer discrimination because of such activities.

The board's order does not throw light on Mr. Sidener's charge that John L. Lewis secretly ordered the miners to ignore his instructions to return to work. But it does indicate that the Taft-Hartley ban on unfair labor practices affords individual union members much-needed protection against abusive treatment by fellow unionists as well as employers. Mr. Sidener's chief offense appears to have been that he interpreted Mr. Lewis' order to mean what it said. Whether that assumption was right or wrong, it was his duty as a law-abiding citizen to urge the strikers to obey the court injunction.

An agreement between the union and Mr. Sidener was reached some time ago, permitting his return to work. But the day after his return he quit the job, charging that his life had been threatened. Whether the NLRB order, to which both the union and the employing company have consented, will give him actual as well as legal protection from assault or less violent forms of coercion will never be known unless he has the courage to resume work once more and test the temper of other union members.

Crisis In Belgium

The return of King Leopold to Belgium has precipitated a situation very close to anarchy and civil war. The economic life of the country has been paralyzed by strikes; shipping is at a standstill, railway lines have been dynamited, interrupting communication between western and central Europe. Large-scale rioting has occurred in most of the important cities; many persons have been injured and some killed. A large portion of the southern provinces have passed entirely out of the control of the central government at Brussels, and in some places, such as Liege and Charleroi, small units of the army and the national constabulary are now beleaguered by the local populations.

The disorders have spread even to northern Belgium where the sentiment for Leopold is strongest. At Antwerp the dock workers have joined the strike. There have been angry demonstrations against the King at Ghent; and at Brussels there have been serious clashes between rioters and police. Meanwhile, Belgian occupation forces have been recalled from Germany, as the Social Christian government, which brought about Leopold's restoration, prepares for the showdown. This will probably come tomorrow, unless the King decides to abdicate or unless some unlikely compromise with the Socialists, who are the principal organizers of the opposition, can be reached. The King's enemies have called for a concerted march upon the capital. Barricades have accordingly been constructed along the southern approaches to Brussels, and government troops are moving southward from the city, presumably to head off the demonstrators.

It is a situation made to order for the Belgian Communists, who, needless to say, are energetically exploiting it. A civil war in Belgium would be a disaster of the first magnitude to the West, if it were synchronized with some sudden Communist attack elsewhere in Europe. Thus though the anti-monarchist strikes have been the work of trades unions affiliated with the Socialists, most of the actual violence appears to have been incited by the Communists in the hope that the example will spread. Some of the Socialist organizations, indeed, have issued warnings against violence during the demonstrations, and in some places even appear to have intervened to protect the state police from mobs.

Meanwhile, a cry has gone up for the secession of French-speaking provinces. Here, indeed, is a curious reversal. Before the Second World War it was among the Flemish-speaking population that the nationalist and separatist spirit ran highest. The recent elections, however, demonstrated that the Flemings have now gained political ascendancy and their intransigeant attitude to the question of Leopold shows that they have no intention of surrendering it. The irony of the situation, of course, is that Belgium was the country of Europe in which the highest degree of political stability was to be expected; for in no other country has economic recovery from war and occupation been so rapid.

Pen Of America

Each year more than 250 million letters are written from America to people abroad. They go to relatives and friends and business associates—often to persons whom the senders have never met but with whom an acquaintanceship has been started through correspondence. These letters are written by men and women who know America at first hand to men and women who, for the most part, know America only by hearsay and sometimes only by hostile propaganda. They can be, therefore, an immensely powerful instrument for telling the world what this country is really like, what its aims and intentions really are.

With this in view, the Common Council for American Unity has initiated a "Letters From America" campaign designed to enlist some 35 million first and second generation Americans in the task of spreading the truth about the United States. Each week the Council sends to foreign language publications and radio stations a column, translated into 22 languages, designed to help letter writers correct prevalent misconceptions about life in this country. It seems to us a most useful undertaking. In many parts of the world, the arrival of a letter from America can be a major event. It may be read by many persons beside the recipient. And it may, with all the forcefulness of eye-witness testimony, counteract the Communist broadcasts that depict America as imperialistic and indifferent to culture and in the grip of universal unemployment.

Nobody taking part in this campaign need feel constrained to tell anything but the truth about life here. All that is suggested is a consciousness of the weight likely to be given to his words. No less potently than the "Voice of America," the pen of America can render service to the cause of truth in the titanic struggle for men's minds.

Peace Appeal

In connection with Gertrude Evans' letter of July 27 on the Stockholm peace appeal: I do not question that the use of the atom bomb is immoral. I also believe that much of the bombing done in World War II (saturation bombing, for instance) was immoral. There are many things that take place in modern warfare that can hardly be called just. "War is hell" and we all know it. But why pick on the atom bomb to the exclusion of all other factors?

Let's say a group of people have been saving knives and clubs while you paid little attention. Suddenly there is a vicious attack on your family and neighbors. You haven't been saving those weapons or been training to use them, but have an automatic for protection against burglars. You are outnumbered, but that gun will surely help to put down the aggressors. "Wait a minute!" screams a third group of people. "If you shoot that gun you are a criminal and will be branded as such throughout the world." Now what would you say to those people? I say nuts.

"Better Way"

In our combat with delinquency in young people we do well to "fight" vice by removing temptation, by governmental restrictions, by "probes" which expose wrong-doers, and similar means to meet force by force. But we finally discover that the surest and most reasonable way to quench delinquency is to inoculate children with a curative dose of home-training. Children must be taught by preparation to meet and resist what is morally hurtful. Such children can walk through the fiery furnace of our modern social world and come out with unscorched garments.

Apply this principle to our international situation. Do we meet our objective by spending money, thousands of lives, destruction of property, debasing our humanity, to the point of "killers"? If some nations by preference vote themselves into communism because ill-trained by teaching (including religion), can the United States and nations of similar mind prevent such a thing by force? Evil of any kind is, in a sense, its own corrective. Communism cannot exist after experience with it has discovered its diabolical deception.

No A-Bomb In Korea

During the past four weeks since the outbreak of the Korean War, several people have written letters suggesting that the United States drop an atom bomb in Northern Korea to end the war quickly. There are many reasons why such action would be impractical, both materially and morally.

Even without the A bomb, we would have won the war with Japan. Recently I heard a speech delivered by a man who is well informed about the political history of the Far East. He said Russian propagandists have informed eastern nations that although the United States did not want to use the atom bomb against the Germans in World War II, she saved it for the Oriental people because of our antipathy to them. Could this explain the determined fighting of the Koreans?

From a moral standpoint, the American people, and other Christian nations, have never believed in the wanton destruction of civilian populations. To protect the lives and liberties of other freedom loving nations has been the purpose of the last three wars and is the purpose of the United Nations and particularly of the Security Council.

I believe the A bomb should be employed only as a last resort; either if the enemy uses it against us, or our allies, or if it should be the only means of winning the war. If the United States and our allies completely mobilize immediately, and send reinforcements to Korea, we may not need the A bomb.

Pearson's Parallel

Drew Pearson in his column of July 24 draws an unfair parallel between the Pearl Harbor and the Korean attacks in his lauding of President Roosevelt and criticism of President Truman in their subsequent actions. He says President Roosevelt went on the air immediately after Pearl Harbor to keep the public informed, while President Truman waited three weeks.

The two happenings are not parallel in any way. Pearl Harbor was on an American possession. The Japanese were an independent nation, self-sustaining, manufacturing their own war material, training their own service men, etc. We declared war at once, and we knew we were in a full scale war. There was nothing subtle or uncertain about it.

The Korean affair is the attack of one part of the country upon another part of the same country. Our point of interest in Korea is to keep a Communist army from occupying territory very close to Japan.

When President Truman had General MacArthur send troops to the support of the South Korean army, no one knew just what the circumstances were, nor what to expect. It seemed at first that the thing might be of very short duration. It was not until two weeks or so had passed that leaders knew that it was going to take time. Then conferences had to be held, opinions gotten, decisions made, and not until then, when he had something to sell the public, did President Truman go on the air.

Mr. Pearson said as he listened to the President's speech he couldn't help but think, "that what more Americans need to do, instead of carping and criticizing, is to pitch in and help out." What I couldn't help but think after reading all of Mr. Pearson's column, was that he should take his own advice and head the procession.

Facts On Korea

As long as Asia remains as destitute and dark as it is, it seems impossible that we can successfully make war or peace in that area without considering uppermost its peculiar economics and politics. This seems to be the lesson we should have learned in China.

The failure to understand or reveal the economic, political and social situation of the country of Korea would seem to be the real reason we were caught off guard by the invasion. So long as Americans and their leaders continue to be uninformed about the dynamic issues at stake so long, it would seem, shall we continue to be caught off guard and surprised by the course of international events.

Prayer Week

I believe the world is more in need of prayer than men and guns. We have national holidays, but we don't have a national holiday for prayer. I suggest that our President should set aside one week of each year for prayer, and call it National Prayer Week.

In the full realization of the current raging warfare, in which we, of necessity, have had to become involved, will you not agree with me that the hour has come when we must launch a different kind of a campaign—a Prayer War?

Many of our readers are undoubtedly familiar with the devotion to Our Lady of Fatima, founded on the apparitions by the Mother of God to three small children at Fatima, Portugal, in 1917. World War was then raging; World War II was predicted and even future wars, but Our Lady promised then, and I am sure her promise still holds good today, that through many prayers, reparation for our sins and consecration of the world and Russia particularly to her Immaculate Heart would human society be saved.

Dairy Farm Pressure

In the milk hearing now going on in Washington, Representative Smith is openly espousing the cause of the dairy farmers in what seems to be an attempt to deliver the Washington market exclusively to the Maryland and Virginia dairymen.

In Representative Smith's own district there are probably 10 consuming families to one milk producing family. Any restrictive regulations within the district calculated to give this market to a selected few producers similarly will affect the consuming families in Representative Smith's district.

How can a public official openly act to serve the interests of a minority and jeopardize the interests of a majority of his constituents? Perhaps the answer is to be found in the fact that the dairy farmers are organized and the consumers are not.

If the new census shows that the farm population has dropped to 18 percent of the total will 82 continue to be taxed to subsidize the 18? Yes, until the 82 decide to do something about it.

Segregated Water

Not long ago my husband and I, with our small son and a friend, went by car on a trip to Virginia. In our hurry to get away we neglected to include our thermos jug of water. As soon as we were out of the city limits, our little boy, in the way of children, began to ask for water. Not one store would let us have any. We could not buy it. We were refused everywhere—at farm houses as well as stores. In the meantime the child was getting hotter and thirstier, just cried, "Water, mommie, water." Finally, I took him in my arms and begged a drink of a farm woman, herself surrounded with her own brood. She pointed to a pump, and while I pumped, my husband held his hands for the child to drink.

That child will grow up to fight to take the democratic way of life to other brown skinned peoples—even though he cannot sit down to an ordinary meal in an ordinary public city eating place in the capital city of the greatest democracy in the world. COLORED MOTHER.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

How Much Control?

NOTE: Joseph Alsop is flying to Korea, and his reports on the war there will soon appear in this space.

MUST WE GO the whole hog? Must the American economy be placed on a full mobilization basis, with all the wearily familiar paraphernalia, rationing, and price and wage control, and all the rest? Bernard M. Baruch, whose testimony on this point is not to be lightly disregarded, has answered these questions with a flat "yes."

It is hardly a secret that W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, strongly agrees with Baruch. Yet the majority view among President Truman's advisers is against any demand for all-out control powers at this time. The most articulate spokesman for this view—rather oddly, in view of his reputation as a left-winger thirsting for controls of all sorts—is Chairman Leon Keyserling of the Council of Economic Advisers. Keyserling is also supported in general by other influential Administration figures, like W. Averell Harriman, able special adviser to the President.

This majority view is based in part on a purely practical consideration. It is argued that a demand for full controls would meet fierce opposition from the conservatives in Congress, and that while Congress was debating, the whole economic situation might get out of hand. But the view is also based on more general grounds.

ANY SENSIBLE MAN must recognize that, bar a general war, present level of defense spending will continue for years. No sensible man welcomes the prospect of an American economy saddled indefinitely with price controls and all the rest. And the majority view is that if certain anti-inflationary devices are used really toughly, even ruthlessly, all-out controls can still be avoided. These measures may be listed roughly as follows:

First, much higher taxes. The 5-billion-dollar tax raise demanded by Truman is only a first bite. There is much more to come, if Truman has his way with Congress.

Second, really tough consumer credit control. Consumer credit is now at the 19-billion-dollar level, pressing explosively against the whole price structure. Drastic consumer credit control will elicit howls of pain and rage from all sorts of powerful people, from manufacturers to home builders. But tanks are now more important than cars, radar sets than apartment houses. At the same time, of course, there should be tight control over all nondefense Government spending, State and local as well as Federal.

Third, equally tough use of the allocation and priority authority demanded by Truman, to reduce spending and production in all fields which compete with defense.

Fourth, rewards where possible, penalties where necessary, to increase productive capacity, especially in such tight areas as steel, which was already producing above capacity before Korea. Keyserling especially insists that the best way to convert dollars into arms, and to reduce price pressures at the same time, is to produce more stuff.

Fifth, but by no means least important, ruthless use of Government-owned agricultural commodities, from cotton to butter, to keep food prices in line and to take the joy out of speculation.

THIS SORT of program should make it possible to do the defense job without going the whole way on controls. That at least is the hope of the majority group in the administration. On the face of it, this seems a perfectly rational hope. Yet close examination gives rise to certain doubts.

The measures listed above involve stepping on all sorts of politically important toes. Who is to do the toe-stepping job? Congress, in an election year, will be deeply reluctant to bite its tax-paying constituents even more painfully than they have been bitten already.

Moreover, present plans call for placing control authority in existing departments and agencies, like the Agriculture Department, the Commerce Department and the Federal Reserve Board. It is difficult to imagine Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan being really tough to the farmers, or Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer really nasty to the businessmen. Yet the success of the whole program rests squarely on a willingness to be very tough and nasty where necessary.

On one point at least there is no real disagreement among the more sensible men in the Administration. The current explosive price surge, which endangers the whole economy, and thus the whole defense effort, cannot be allowed to continue much longer. Thus every day that passes is strengthening the position of Symington in favor of full controls. If prices, urged on their way by the seekers of the fast buck, continue to rear upward, the hope of avoiding full controls will be dashed, and Truman will go to Congress for all-out wartime control authority. The next two or three weeks should tell the story.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Malik Returning

ALL THAT we know, as this is written, is that Mr. Malik is going to exercise his right to preside over the Security Council during the month of August, and that his return to the U. N. comes just as the first phase of the Korean war is ended. One of the mysteries has always been the connection between Russia's U. N. policy on the one hand and the Korean aggression on the other. As Nehru was among the first to discern, the problem of a Korean settlement and the problem of Russia's return to the United Nations are closely related. In this fact, rather than in the unacceptable formula for bringing the Russians back, lay the lasting significance of Nehru's first diplomatic intervention.

Lippmann

THE RUSSIANS walked out of the U. N. months ago, and it is hardly conceivable that they then planned to be away from the Security Council when the North Koreans struck. The walkout was a protest against the recognition of Chiang and the failure to recognize Red China. Even if the Russians knew in January that they would unleash the Korean war in June, they could hardly have foreseen then all that has happened in the U. N.—due to Mr. Malik's absence—since June 25.

Nevertheless, as the dates for the aggression approached, the Russians must have considered their actions in the United Nations. They could have sent Mr. Malik back to veto all United Nations sanctions. But his sudden reappearance for that purpose would have been tantamount to admitting that the North Koreans and the Soviet Union were in a common conspiracy. Moreover, it is probable that the Kremlin thought the American reaction would be much softer than it was. They could hardly have foreseen so abrupt a reversal of the diplomatic policy defined by Secretary Acheson in January and reaffirmed so recently by Senator Connally, and of the military planning in accordance with that policy by the Pentagon and the Far Eastern command.

NEVERTHELESS, it has been probable that at some time the Soviet Union would come back to the U. N. The Russians were never likely to remain passive while the United Nations was organized and was mobilized as an anti-Soviet coalition. The question, to which Mr. Malik may be giving us at least part of the answer this week, is what measures the Soviet Union will take in order to disrupt the coalition.

It would be foolhardy to guess, at least in print, were it not so important to be ready with some effective diplomatic measures of our own. We should be ready, I think, for proposals that the firing should cease and that a settlement should be negotiated through the U. N.

In saying that we should be ready for this proposal, I am not venturing to predict that this is what Mr. Malik will propose on Tuesday. I do, however, venture to think that we must be ready not for some stupid action which is easy to deal with, but for a shrewd and realistic action which it is not easy to deal with. Until we know something to the contrary, it will be prudent to assume that the Russians are likely to propose a diplomatic solution on the basis of the accomplished fact—which is that the North Koreans have defeated the South Koreans and that, with the possible exception of an American beachhead at Pusan, Korea has been reunited by military force.

ALL that can usefully be said now is that our own diplomatic action should be developed slowly and with the greatest deliberation. There is nothing to be gained by answering quickly and much may be lost by answering hastily. Between the first phase of the war which is nearing its end and the second phase—that of the counter-attack—which is only in the early stages of being prepared, a long military stalemate is probable. In this interval, which might last until next summer, the struggle will be political—for the allegiance of the Koreans and for the favorable opinion of the peoples of Asia and of Europe.

In the political struggle there is no advantage in being the one to break off diplomatic negotiations. Nothing is easier, of course, than to break them off and Mr. Acheson is rather an adept at it. But in the long difficult period ahead of us in Korea it will be no advantage to have broken off diplomacy with a snappy answer and to have closed all the doors except the one through which the American army must pass.

A Communication

Stalin And His Heirs —War Or Peace?

By Lazar Volin

Dr. Volin is a regional specialist in the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations. His opinions expressed here do not necessarily represent those of the Department of Agriculture.

THE UPPERMOST question asked today is whether the Korean aggression is a prelude to other Soviet onslaughts, culminating in a general conflagration. Only Stalin knows the answer and he keeps his thoughts to himself. It is possible, however, on the basis of his past utterances and actions, to arrive at some conclusion as to the motives guiding his present course, which may be of important predictive value.

At the outset we must, I think, recognize the crucial role which the doctrine of the inevitability of war between the U. S. S. R. and the capitalistic world has played in Stalin's thinking. In expounding the Foundation of Leninism, in 1924 Stalin said that, "Under imperialism wars cannot be averted and that a coalition between the proletarian revolution in Europe and the colonial revolution in the East in a united world front of revolution against the world front of imperialism is inevitable."

He mentions elsewhere, among the basic principles laid down by Lenin that, "International Imperialism . . . under no circumstances, under no conditions can co-exist with the Soviet Republic," and that "a conflict appears to be inevitable." And in another place he quotes approvingly Lenin's dictum that: "The existance of the Soviet Republic side by side with imperialist states for a long time is unthinkable. One or the other must triumph in the end. And before that end comes a series of frightful clashes between the Soviet Republic and the bourgeois states will be inevitable."

THIS WAS all said before World War II. But on February 9, 1946, Stalin declared that the second world war "broke out as an inevitable result of the development of the world economic and political forces on the basis of the modern monopolistic capitalism." Stalin then goes on to elaborate this thesis in the traditional Marxist fashion.

It is not necessary here, even if space were available, to demonstrate the fallacies and exaggerations of Stalin's interpretation of the origin of wars. (The reader interested in the critique of the economic interpretation of the causes of wars may be referred to a stimulating little book by Prof. Lionel Robbins of the London School of Economics, entitled The Economic Causes of War.) It is sufficient that Stalin accepts the doctrine at par value.

It is true that in various published interviews with foreigners Stalin stressed the theme of a possible peaceful co-existence of the U. S. S. R. with the capitalist countries. But this was manifestly intended primarily for export propaganda purposes, since such assertions are in sharp contrast to the official Communist resolutions which are bearing out the doctrine of Stalin and Lenin about the eventual military clash between the U. S. S. R. and the capitalist world.

The Communist doctrine of the inevitability of war, while it calls for feverish armament, i.e., tanks before butter, does not necessarily imply any hastening of the showdown on the part of the Soviets. On the contrary, it has been argued that the Kremlin would have every incentive to avoid a serious risk of a major war involvement, especially since it believes that time is on the Soviet side. Not only would the U. S. S. R. grow stronger with every passing year, but it would also be advantageous to wait for what the Communists believe would be the softening effect on the capitalist world of that long awaited economic depression, the inevitability of which is also a cardinal tenet of the Communist creed.

THERE IS, however, one hitch in this argument, and the Korean incident helps to bring it to the fore. Stalin recently reached the good Biblical age of three-score and ten. There is every reason to think that he is solicitous about the fate of the state he helped so much to forge, when the helm will pass into other hands.

The trial of strength with the capitalist world, which Stalin considers inevitable, must be of special concern to him. This is likely to be the more true since Stalin knows the character and quality of those in his entourage who are most likely to become his immediate successors. After all, who should know better than Stalin himself that he eliminated from the leadership of the party all possible competitors or successors of equal or greater stature and surrounded himself by "yes" men for whose statesmanship he could hardly have any respect, even if his vanity were not constantly inflated by a fulsome adulation, probably unequaled in modern times.

Under such circumstances it would be natural for Stalin to desire to leave to his heirs the country in the most advantageous strategic, and not merely defensive position for the impending struggle, and to achieve this during his lifetime even if serious risks of war may be involved. This point, it seems to me, has not received the attention it deserves.

THE KOREAN aggression, however, tends to confirm the above thesis. While from the American standpoint the country has been considered of negligible strategic importance, the reverse is true from the Soviet point of view. Because if its proximity to the Russian Far East and to Manchuria, Korea was considered strategically important even in Czarist times, at least important enough not to permit the entrenchment of any other great power. When, therefore, Japan, in the 1890's, began to extend its influence in Korea, Russia also intervened and the issue was finally settled by the victory of Japan in the war with Russia in 1904-05.

Stalin's expansionist aims are doubtless much broader than those of the old Russian imperialism, with its relatively limited objectives and capacity for accomodation, compromise and alliance, as exemplified in the Anglo-Russian agreement of 1907 on Persia and the alliance with France for more than a quarter of a century. Still, in the case of Korea, as in many other directions, Stalin has apparently followed in the footsteps of the old Russian imperialism to secure what he doubtless considers an important strategic position for the U. S. S. R.

It may be debatable whether Stalin expected our military intervention in Korea under the auspices of the United Nations, although the very thoroughness of Soviet preparation for aggression there would indicate that he considered such a move highly probable. But even if military measures to resist his aggression were avoided and no immediate casus belli, were threatened, still Stalin undoubtedly knew that his provocative Korean action would galvanize the American defense preparations, and he showed in the past a healthy respect for American industrial power.

That there is no chance now for this power to be weakened by a serious depression, as had been fervently hoped by the Kremlin ever since the end of the second world war, Stalin should also know. The very fact that he is willing to take such serious risks calls for the exercise of the utmost vigilance by the whole free world.

Panic Buying Hit By Government Purchasing Group

The "housekeepers" of State and local governments were pledged yesterday against panic buying and hoarding.

John F. Ward of Chicago, president of the National Institute of Governmental Purchasing, Inc., made public a letter to President Truman declaring that hoarding and panic buying "give aid and comfort to those who would destroy us."

He said members of the institute, the purchasing executives of State and local governments, buy "billions of dollars" worth of supplies annually.

Ward said the officials in buying will "be guided by the national interest."

Phils Take Two, Roberts Hurls 3d Shutout in Row

Whiz Kids Top Bucs, 10-0, 4-2, Now Lead by 3

Philadelphia, July 30 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies boosted their National League lead to three games today by smacking down the Pittsburgh Pirates twice, 10-0 and 4-2.

Robin Roberts pitched four-hit ball in the opener for his third consecutive and his fourth shutout of the season while Del Ennis blasted his second grand slam homer in three days in the eighth.

In the nightcap the Phils were scoreless until the eighth when Ennis blasted loose with a second homer, this time with one on.

Cards Halt Giant Streak At Nine, 6-3

New York, July 30 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals snapped a nine-game New York winning streak today as Gerry Staley pitched the Red Birds to a 6-3 victory over the Giants. The victory was Staley's 10th, the same number he won in 1949.

Another streak that came to an end was the errorless string of Red Schoendinst, Cardinal second baseman. After going 57 games and accepting 320 chances, both National League records, Schoendienst made a wild throw for his first miscue since Decoration Day.

The Cards broke a scoreless tie in the sixth with three runs on three hits off Sheldon Jones. They added three more in the ninth. Enos Slaughter hit a triple and double to lead the run production.

Tigers' 8-Run Fifth Whips Macks, 12-10

Detroit, July 30 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers had to come from behind with an eight-run fifth inning rally today to edge the Philadelphia Athletics 12-10 to protect their American League lead.

Eight pitchers saw action in the two-hour, 54-minute marathon, which was featured by Vic Wertz's continued hot hitting streak.

The big Detroit outfielder bagged his twentieth homer, fifth in four days, and added a double as he led a 16-hit assault on four Philadelphia pitchers.

The A's jumped into a 7-2 lead in the first four innings as they mauled Tiger relief pitcher Paul Calvert.

But the Tigers, faced with the possibility that they would topple out of the league lead by losing today, surged back with a seven-hit, eight-run attack in the fifth inning with relief pitchers Alex Kellner and Lou Brissie taking the punishment.

Two walks and a disastrous error by shortstop Eddie Joost on a double play ball also figured in the rally that sent Detroit into a 10-7 lead.

The Tigers ran the count to 12-7 in the seventh before the Athletics came up with a three-run ninth inning rally featured by Sam Chapman's eighteenth homer, a two-run wallop.

Freddie Hutchinson was knocked out of the box in the ninth, but got credit for his eleventh win as against six losses.

Braves Win 2, Move Into 3d

Boston, July 30 (AP).—Boston's Braves edged into third place in the ever shifting National League pennant fight by twice defeating the Cincinnati Reds 4-2 and 10-0 today before 16,562 fans.

Vern Bickford, aided by three home runs, registered his twelfth victory in the opener and left-handed Johnny Antonelli twirled a neat five hitter in pitching his second Major League shutout in the second game.

Earl Torgeson, Boston first baseman, clubbed his sixteenth homer in the opener. It was his third in as many times at bat. The bespectacled Bostonian hit in both games to run his hitting streak to 21 games.

Luis Olmo and Bob Elliott also walloped home runs to aid Bickford.

Yanks Win Two, Trail Tigers by Only 2 Points

Chicago, July 30 (AP).—The New York Yankees climbed within 2 percentage points of Detroit's first-place Tigers by sweeping a double-header, 15-7 and 4-3, from the Chicago White Sox before 29,925 persons today in celebrating Manager Casey Stengel's sixtieth birthday.

The Yankees powered six of the ten homes runs smashed during the two games. They won the eight-inning nightcap, which was called on account of darkness, on Catcher Larry Berra's twelfth round-tripper to open the sixth inning. The New Yorkers collected 16 hits in the opener for a total of 37 bases.

Jerry Coleman, who used an inside the park homer to lift his seasonal round-tripper count to six, paced the potent Yankee firing against four White Sox pitchers in the opener with four runs batted in. Joe DiMaggio hit two homers, one in each game.

ALL'S FORGIVEN—Fred Merkle, whose famous "boner" 42 years ago cost the New York Giants the National League championship, returned to the Polo Grounds yesterday for the first time in 23 years. Acclaimed by 40,000 fans, he was also greeted by Mrs. John McGraw, wife of the famous Giants' manager of yesteryear, while Pitcher Fred Fitzsimmons (left) and Thirdbaseman Freddie Lindstrom, two other Giants' stars of the past, look on. the occasion was Old Timers Day. The present-day Giants lost to the Cardinals, 6-3.

At Old-Timers' Game

40,000 Acclaim Fred Merkle In Return From 23-Year Exile

By Joe Reichler

New York, July 30 (AP).—Fred Merkle, after 23 years of self-imposed exile from baseball, came back to the Polo Grounds today and received one of the biggest ovations ever given a Giant hero.

Merkle, one of a host of former New York Giant and St. Louis Cardinal stars invited to attend the first Old-Timers Day ever staged here, hardly knew what to expect as he strode to the batter's box to accept a gift.

The crowd of some 40,000 didn't leave him in doubt long. It cheered to the echo for the one-time star first baseman for John McGraw. It matched the greetings given to two other Giant stars of top magnitude master—Mel Ott and King Carl Hubbell. The old Giants won, 2 to 1.

The Merkle ovation showed New York fans have forgiven him for his now-famous "blunder" of 1908 that cost the Giants the pennant.

Merkle, now a retired Florida businessman of 61, feared to come here at first because he knew it would revive tales of the 1908 episode. He said he never will forget that afternoon of September 23, 1908, when he failed to touch second on a ninth-inning single that apparently had driven in the winning run against Chicago.

Merkle was declared out. The game was ordered replayed. The Cubs won it, and the Giants lost the pennant by one game.

Ott and Hubbell played prominent roles as the 1933 edition of the Giants and the Cardinals of the "Gas House Gang" days met in a three-inning contest preceding the regular game between New York and St. Louis.

Hubbell pitched the first inning for the Giants. He was opposed by Tex Carleton, the same pitcher who waged an unforgettable 18-inning duel with King Carl back in 1933. When the two left the mound after the first inning the score was the same as on that afternoon—1 to 0 in favor of New York.

Fred Fitzsimmons and Hal Schumacher followed Carl to the hill. Paul Derringer and Jimmy Brown, a former Redbird infielder, completed the mound chores for the Cards.

Old Cards Pull Hidden Ball(s) Trick on Giants

New York, July 30 (AP).—The crowd at the Polo Grounds got a big laugh today during the first inning of the New York Giants-St. Louis Cardinals Old-timers game when the Cards pulled the hidden ball trick.

Jo Jo Moore singled to right for the Giants, and after play resumed he was tagged out by Ripper Collins, the Cardinal first baseman. The Giants protested and all four umpires rushed out on the field and frisked the Cardinal infield.

They found one or two baseballs in the pockets of Collins, Second Baseman Stu Martin, Shortstop Leo Durocher, and Third Baseman Pepper Martin.

Umpires then reinstated Moore.

Mele Socks Two Homers, Drives in Eight Runs

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

St. Louis, July 30.—The Nats hit the jackpot here today, beating their old masters, the seventh-place St. Louis Browns, twice for their first double header victory of the season.

Washington won, 9-5, on 12 hits in the first game, and scored eight runs in the ninth inning to win the nightcaps, 13-8, with 18 hits.

Sam Mele wielded the biggest bat. The big left fielder slammed out two homers and three singles, and the wreckage he inflicted on the Browns included eight runs batted in and four runs scored.

That eight-run splurge wiped out a 6-5 Brownie lead and gave the Nats only their sixth success against 11 losses to St. Louis. The Nats scored eight runs in the fourth inning against the Browns yesterday but lost.

Joe Haynes and Sandy Consuegra scattered six hits for Washington in the opener, and Haynes was awarded his fifth victory against three losses. Irv Noren also homered for the Nats in the opener.

Browns Get 13 Walks

Mickey Harris, in relief for the third time in three days, was the winner in the second game. In the four-game series, Harris won one and lost two.

After knotting the opener at 1-1 in the second, the Nats plastered Stubby Overmire for four runs to take a 5-1 lead in the third.

Haynes and Consuegra tempted the Brownies often enough in the opener by issuing 13 walks, but they were effective in the pinch, leaving 13 Brownie base runners stranded.

Yost led off with a triple to left and Noren scored him with a single. Vernon beat out a bunt, and then Mele upped the Nats' margin to 5-1 with a drive into the left field bleachers.

Coleman Homers

Haynes yielded a homer to Coleman with two outs in the Brownie third, and then his control went completely haywire. He walked Howie Moss, Stirnweiss, Tommy Upton and Bill Sommers to force in another run and reduce Washington's lead to 5-3.

Lenhardt whittled the Brownie deficit down to 5-4 in the fourth when he lifted his fifteenth home run into the left field seats.

Noren gave Haynes a bigger lead to play with in the fifth, following a walk to Cass Michaels, with his home run into the right field net. A single by Noren, an infield out and Mele's single in the seventh boosted Washington's lead to 8-4.

But Haynes couldn't stand the prosperity. In the Brownie seventh, he loaded the bases with one out on a single to Moss and passes to Stirnweiss and Upton. Consuegra was called in and walked Sommers to force in one run, but Ken Wood, who ruined Washington with late singles in the first two games of the series, smacked into a double play, and that ended St. Louis' scoring.

The Brownies rapped Elmer Singleton for two runs in the first inning of the nightcap.

Washington's first four batters hit safely in the second inning, to tie it up. Vernon led off with a single to center, and Mele drove his second homer of the day into the first row of the left field bleachers to tit it up, 2-2.

When Michaels and Dente followed with sharp singles and wound up on third, and second while the Browns were relaying

Cleveland, July 30 (AP).—Walt Dropo and Bobby Doerr hit sixth inning homers today as Boston won the second game of a doubleheader from Cleveland, 6-3.

Cleveland won the first game, 6-5, when Larry Doby's 10th inning single struck Joe Dobson over the heart and stunned him. Dale Mitchell scored from second as the ball lay at Dobson's feet.

Dobson relieved Ellis Kinder after Kinder pulled a muscle in his side. Both will go to Boston for examinations and treatment. Dobson is scheduled to undergo X-rays to determine the extent of his injury.

Willard Nixon got credit for pitching the second game victory, the only game Boston won in a four-game series. Until the ninth, he allowed the Indians only one run—Dale Mitchell's first home run of the season.

Dropo's round trip scored Vern Stephens, who had walked.

Boston got two runs in the eighth on hits by Buddy Rosar and Billy Goodman, a walk and a passed ball. The other sox second game run was in the ninth when Johnny Pesky walked, went to third on a balk and a bunt and scored on Ray Boone's error.

Doby homered in the third inning of the first game, scoring Mitchell, who had walked, and Lou Boudreau, who had singled. Bou-

Area Golf Roundup

Brownrigg's 64 Sets Record at Argyle

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

BILL BROWNRIGG, former captain of the Roosevelt High and George Washington University golf teams, set a course record at Argyle Country Club yesterday, posting an eight-under-par 64.

Brownrigg scored six birdies and an eagle in his record-breaking round. He went out in 31, five under par, then birdied 10, 11 and 12 to go 8 under, and parred the remaining holes.

Brownrigg birdied four and five, scored an eagle on the 480-yard par 5 seventh with a 12-foot putt, and then birdied the eighth for his five-under score at the turn. He was playing with Russ McLaughlin and John Reynolds.

Brownrigg is teaching pro at Brick Woods' Driving Range.

BETHESDA: Tom Manning and Tom Baldwin won the most exciting match of the year at Bethesda in the semifinals of the club two-man team tournament, defeating Jerry Hart and Wayne McGee one up in 27 holes.

McGee and Hart were four down with four to go when McGee won four straight holes with birdies. In a nine-hole playoff, Tom Baldwin birdied the seventh, and his handicap gave him an eagle. Each of the other holes was halved and it was good for the victory.

In the other semifinal match, Bill Arey and M. M. Smith beat George Meloon and Charles Batchelder, 5 and 4. The mixed Scotch foursome ended in a tie between Mrs. Wayne McGee and Earl Skinker and Chet Wiggins and Sue Baughen with net 62s.

KENWOOD: The annual "Pro-Am," in which low handicap members take the part of the "pros" was a big success with 41 foursomes teeing off. The winners (handicaps in parenthesis) include:

E. H. Holmes (8) and Dr. W. T. Ready (18) tied for first place with William Briggs (7) and W. R. Consedine (19) with a best ball 57 each; J. H. Somes (10) and J. Emelio (20) and Larry Imhoff (3) and Bob Dedrick (13) tied for third with a best ball 59 each.

MANOR: Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Haynes, 89—23—66, won the mixed Scotch foursome. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bower took low gross with 80. Bill Griffin and Mrs. E. M. Milans and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nash tied for second low net, with net 67s. Mr. and Mrs. George Martin took second low gross with 40—41—81.

ROCK CREEK: Tex Carpenter and Doris Carpenter won the mixed Scotch foursome with 72—5—67. Dot Houston and Art Urban were second, with 76—8—68. Helen Yeagle and Del Todd were third, with 78—9—69.

PRINCE GEORGES: Mike Jankowski won the match play against par, six up. Jankowski shot a sensational 32—34—66, six under par. He had birdies on 1, 2, 4, 6, 10, and 11.

Jim Novak and Bob Miller tied for second, each 4 up; and Bob Morris, Barry Ford, and Dick Sinclair tied for fourth, each 3 up. Edgie Johnson took low gross with 71.

INDIAN SPRING: Eddie Ault shot 36—35—71 to lead qualifiers for the club championship tourneys. George Thornton, Dick Schattman, and Jim Hunt were next, 74 each.

Dr. Jack Mackler had a hole-in-one on the third, a 155-yarder. He used a 4-iron. Dr. Mackler was playing in a twosome with Ed Aaronson. In the Ladies' Scotch foursome, Mrs. John Minovich and Mrs. Harry Kipp tied for first with Mrs. Louis Watzman and Mrs. Al Swaine, with net 67s. Mrs. William Patterson and Mrs. Marty Gordon took low gross with 88.

ARMY NAVY: G. M. Rice won the best nine-hole tourney with 34-11-23. M. M. McGee, 30-4-26, and B. F. LaPlante, 34-8-26, tied for second.

BELLE HAVEN: M. T. Evans, 81-18-63, won the 18 hole medal tournament. N. J. Carother was second with a net 68. J. B. Murphy won the senior tournament, defeating V. R. Grundman one up in the finals. Two excellent rounds were recorded as Frank Woolley shot 36-31-67, three-under-par, and Frank Macomber had 38-32-70.

WASHINGTON: The blind bogey ended in a tie at 75 each between W. R. Little, R. E. Hotze, H. E. Pratt, T. H. Reynolds, L. H. Whitten, R. L. Nagle, P. E. Sours, C. R. Miles, G. Dimberg, C. M. Clay, M. M. Stephens, T. J. Crowell, J. P. Wyper, and A. S. King. Washington won a team match from Quantico, Va., on their home course, 19-8.

CONGRESSIONAL: R. W. Wissinger and E. V. Brumfiel won the club two man team championship by defeating J. L. Gibbons and H. F. Bachman 2 and 1 in the finals. B. S. Quigley and E. L. Boglan beat E. S. Draper and S. E. McArdle 3 and 2 in the first flight finals and B. S. Reed and Dr. W. S. Sullivan beat W. L. Frederick and C. A. Canalier one up in 19 holes.

The blind bogey ended in a tie between W. B. Marosheck, T. P. Battle, V. M. Briggs, C. J. Matthews, D. H. Longley, E. M. English and T. K. Wheeler, 75 each.

FT. DUPONT: Mickey Campbell won the ladies' nine hole handicap tournament with 23-39—62. Elaine Edwards and Kitty Nealis tied for second with net 40s.

WOODMONT: Cabot Feldman, Nortag Phillips, Barney Dreyfuss, H. Edlavich, Ralph Tyser and H. Goldstein, tied for first in the blind bogey with net 76s.

FAIRFAX: Major M. L. Raley turned in a 32-37—69, two-under-par for the best score of the day. Doug Smith had 35-37—72. Keith Hall had an eagle on the 441 yard, par five tenth. He placed a long five-iron shot within six feet of the pin and then sank his putt. He had a 74 for the round.

Newcombe Wins 10th On 5-Hitter

Brooklyn, July 30 (AP).—Fifth-inning homers by Roy Campanella and Pee Wee Reese featured a five-run rally that enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to trounce the Chicago Cubs 7-2 today.

Big Don Newcombe limited the Cubs to five hits including a four-bagger by Wayne Terwilliger in recording his tenth victory.

Bob Rush started for the Cubs and was knocked out in the fifth inning. The loss was Rush's ninth straight to the Brooks over a three-season span.

The Dodgers sailed into Rush in the fifth belting a homer, two doubles and a single on five pitches.

D. C. Canoeists Score Heavily

Sebago Lake, N. Y., July 30 (AP).—The Yonkers, N. Y., Canoe Club and Paul Bochnewich captured top honors today in the national championships of the American Canoe Association on Sebago Lake.

Bochnewich won the Good-enough trophy with 10 points and his club took team honors with 45.

The Washington, D. C., Canoe Club tied Sebago Canoe Club for fourth with 13 points, and the Potomac Boat Club, of Washington, D. C., was seventh with four points.

The Washington Canoe Club scored as Frank Havens won the one-man senior single blade; James Welch took second in the one-man junior double kayak, and the club placed third in the four double blade senior and junior events.

For Potomac, Bill Eiseman was second in the one-man junior double kayak, and third in the senior competition.

So Football Annual Says

Every College Has Super Team Coming Up This Fall

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

THERE SIMPLY will not be enough major bowl games to accommodate the deserving football teams next January 1. And the mythical national championship will have to be shared by 25 or 30 teams.

JIM TATUM

Don't believe it? Well, just scoot down to your favorite newsstand and grab a copy of Illustrated Football Annual for 1950. It drools with optimism about practically everybody's football team for 1950.

It says right there in not-too-fine print that there should be anywhere from 10 to 20 super-super gridiron creations, a lot of just plain powerful teams and some only extremely dangerous.

And they've got quotations from the coaches to back it up, yes-sir-ee. Many of the coaches will be reading what they're supposed to have said for the first time.

Most of the straight-from-the-horse's-mouth stuff didn't come from the coaches a tall. College publicity men said it for them.

To give you an idea. It quotes Maryland's Jim Tatum as saying: "This is my best team at Maryland. I expect our line to be greater, our passing improved.". Professional gloomy guy that he is, Tatum would sooner be caught with only eight tackles than say anything like that.

Sticking close to home for the moment, here's how the Illustrated Football Annual sizes up the area squads:

NAVY—"Coach Eddie Erdelatz is 'cautiously optimistic' despite the loss of 12 lettermen . . . There were no real keymen among the missing and the squad has an excellent backlog of manpower accumulated from the abnormally strong Plebe elevens of 1948 and 1949 . . ."

MARYLAND—"You can't play the T-formation with a wooden nickel in the quarterback slot and this might be the only gimmick in the Jim Tatum plans for the team he promised Maryland for 1950. . . . That is the key, but is the lock turns, the whole blasted door is liable to fall on football opponents of the Terps."

GEORGE WASHINGTON—"Coach Bo Rowland sees a stronger victory push by the Colonials with his tailback ace (Andy Davis) rambling at his prime. . . . A young and improving Buff and Blue line adds two sophomore specials in Bob Allwine and Tom Flyzick. Sidliners say the gorilla armed Flyzick is the finest tackle prospect in George Washington's annals."

GEORGETOWN—" . . . steadily edging forward under the skillful stewardship of youthful Bob Margarita. Unexpectedly strong a year ago when they capped a fine season with a Sun Bowl jaunt, the Hoyas now face another ambitious schedule with a squad tagged 'good but largely unproved' . . . New running zip is injected by Bugs Thompson, crazylegs sophomore sensation whose schoolboy exploits are legend in the District of Columbia."

VIRGINIA—"The Cavaliers were swashbucklers last season. Until the very end (meaning Tulane and North Carolina) they slashed a merry way across the Eastern and Southern gridirons . . . Johnny Papit, a great ball-maneuverer, aims to see that early pattern pursued to the last whistle in 1950. Coach Art Guepe feels that way about the matter, too."

And now by sections:

EAST—"Once more the bugles sound charge on the battle-scarred plains at West Point where Red Blaik's Black Knights, unbeaten in their last two campaigns, are girding for a third triumphant season—a roaring touchdown season that bids brightly to recall the day when Davis, Blanchard & Co. were kings of the the gridiron greens."

Man, that's some kind of good!

WEST—"A full generation has come and gone since the Irish have suffered defeat anywhere. This year the South Bend blacksmiths will forge nine new victories to add to the golden chain of 38 games. Make it five seasons without defeat and eight without a reversal in the stadium that Knute Rockne's last Raiders dedicated to the "Victory March" 20 bright autumns ago."

What the fellow means to say is that the Irish ain't gonna be beaten.

SOUTHEAST—"From his hill headquarters at Knoxville, football's great precisionist, Gen. Bob Neyland has the conference championship within his range. And the guns and shells to capture same in the school's first 11-game campaign . . . In the backfield, you have a three-tiered touchdownathon, hard to stall."

That takes care of the Southeastern Conference championship nicely.

SOUTHERN—"The Charlie Justice era is a thing of the past . . . Duke University, and Wallace Wade, the grand ole coach of the conference, will again have a loud championship say . . . Maryland, an upstart as these Dixie football matters go, has the best team in its history, with Big Jim Tatum, the finest coach in the land, doing the driving . . . Tatum as a player (at North Carolina) was never on a team which beat Duke, coached by Wade. In two schedulings at Maryland, Coach Tatum has never been able to beat a Wade-coached Blue Devil aggregation. This thinnish jinx prompts the prediction that Duke will be your next champion. Maryland, with high national pretensions, comes next."

Just Wade until November, bub.

SOUTHWEST—"Everywhere except at speed-stocked, power-laden Texas U., a rebuilding from the not-so-barren earth proceeds. . . . Therefore, ask the logical Longhorn loyalty why shouldn't we figure to cash in our blue chips come November . . . Give terrific Kyle Rote and his game S.M.U. campdares a small slice of title chance."

O. K., they got it.

MIDLANDS—"Oklahoma definitely ain't what she used to be. There are splutters in the motor and the structure is muchly patched, but let it be said swiftly, before tears flow too freely, that Bud Wilkinson's rebuilt vehicle huffing along on the momentum of 21 straight victories, is still the choice for the Big Seven championship. The margin is slim, and Kansas, Missouri and comeback Nebraska all have their winning chances."

Oil's well in Oklahoma, it seems.

COAST—". . . the final 1950 decision will rest among Southern California, Stanford and California . . . The Pacific Coast title may be decided in the Los Angeles Coliseum, Oct. 14—Cal. vs. USC."

That's a date.

the ball to the infield, it looked like curtains for St. Louis starter Ned Garver. But neither Grasso, Singleton nor Yost could put over a run.

The Brownies clubbed Singleton for two more runs in the fifth to take a 4-2 lead. Upton walked, was sacrificed to second, and Garver broke the tie with a single to score Upton. Garver was out when he overran first base, and it cost him another run because, Lenhardt, next up, clouted his sixteenth homer.

Pearce proved to be only a fourth in the series of wild Nat hurlers. In the sixth, he walked Lollar, hit Coleman and walked Stirnweiss to load the bases. Lollar scored on Grasso's passed ball, and Coleman came in on Upton's infield grounder to make it 6-2, St. Louis.

Garver weakened in the seventh, and the Nats nicked him and his successor, Al Widmar, for three runs and pulled within a run of a tie.

Yost worked Garver for a walk, and Coan singled. Widmar was called in and Noren saluted him with a double, scoring Yost. Coan crossed the plate on Vernon's infield out, Mele sent Noren home with a fly to center.

Jim Pearce, who relieved in the sixth, retired for a pinch hitter in the eighth when the Nats put two men on and didn't score, and Mickey Harris came in.

That Big 9th Inning

Then the Nats went on their eight-run binge in the ninth and this is the way the rally went:

Noren singled to right, Vernon singled to right, sending Noren to third. Mele scored Noren with the tying run on a single to center, and Dorish came in to replace Widmar. Michaels socked out a two-run single and took third on Dente's single. Grasso fanned, but Harris singled scoring Michaels, and Yost beat out a bunt filling the bases.

Bruner came in to pitch, and he walked pinch hitter Al Evans forcing home a run. After Noren flied out, Vernon slammed out a three-run double to deep center to account for the last of the eight runs.

In the ninth, Moss hit Harris for a two-run homer, but Harris got out of it by forcing Wood to hit into a game-ending double play.

Cissel-Saxon Jolts Greenbelt, 9-4

Cissel-Saxon Post defeated Greenbelt, 9-4, in a Southern Maryland Junior American Legion League game yesterday at the University of Maryland. The victory gave Cissel-Saxon a 4-0 second half record.

Burke's 268 Wins, Snead Third

Alexander 2d, Three Strokes Back

Sioux City, Iowa, July 30 (AP).—Jack Burke, jr., the gallery favorite, won the Sioux City open golf tournament today with a 268 total.

The little fellow who registers from White Plains, N.Y., was 20 strokes under par for the 72-hole tournament as he finished with a 70, two under for the 6506-yard Elmwood course.

Skip Alexander, the Knoxville, Tenn., professional, took over second place at 271.

Sam Snead, the top money winner along the PGA circuit, faded in the stretch and had to accept a four-way tie for third position.

Snead pulled up to within a stroke of Burke at the end of the first nine holes with a 33 but blew to a 39, two over par, on the inside.

Slamming Sam finished with a 72 and a 273 total. He was grouped with Lloyd Mangrum, Niles, Ill., Paul O'Leary, Bismarck, N. Dak., and Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex.

Alexander had a 70 for his final round and picked up a $1900 check as runner-up.

Jack Webb of Spirit Lake was the low amateur at 285.

Across the District Line

Morningside, Md.—Small, Secluded and Very Friendly

By Bill Gold
Post Reporter

ELEVEN years ago, Marshall C. McLean moved his family into a new house, nestled in a secluded wooded area of Prince Georges County, some five miles beyond the District Line.

"We were both raised on farms in North Carolina," Mrs. McLean recalls. "We have five children, and we thought they ought to grow up in the country, too."

There were a scant half-dozen houses in the settlement when the McLeans moved in. But a war had started in Europe and Washington began to expand.

The real estate firm of Hopkins and Wayson, of Brandywine Md., took over, and started putting up houses by the dozen—then by the hundred. Morningside, Md., was born.

TWO years ago the town was incorporated, and elected its first officials. Today, surrounded by some 1500 neighbors, Mrs. McLean sighs:

"One of these days I suppose we'll be moving farther out from town. This isn't 'out in the country' any more."

The story of Morningside is the story of what's been happening in metropolitan centers all over the Nation. Morningside is Silver Spring in miniature.

People are moving from urban centers, and suburban shopping centers are drawing Saturday traffic jams that rival those downtown.

Morningside hasn't gotten that far yet. So far, it's mostly a collection of sleeping quarters, with adjoining grocery store, barber shop, cafe, garage and variety store.

MIKE MITCHELL
young Morningside fisherman, of 204 Woodland rd., put some bloodworm bait to good use, but wouldn't tell where he caught the fish. "I don't think you're allowed to fish there"

But 32-year-old Mayor William J. Spahr of 310 Woodland rd. looks forward to the day when expanded city limits and increased population will point the way toward steady growth.

FEW local suburbs are blessed with the easy accessibility of Morningside. From the Anacostia end of the South Capitol st. bridge, its a 6.6 mile spin out Military hwy., through rolling grasslands. Those who observe the speed limits take 11 minutes to make the trip from the Anacostia end of the bridge.

Just short of Andrews Air Base, you leave the 50 m. p. h. highway at a point where the sign says: "Morningside, Speed Limit 15 m. p. h."

What's more, you don't go any faster. The streets are too full of holes.

Bill Spahr sighs when you mention those holes. "We have $13,000 in the treasury, but that won't pay for the paving of several miles of streets—let alone the other improvements we need. It takes time for a town to grow up."

Spahr and his four colleagues on the city council give time a helping hand. They spend their "leisure" hours on the roads, with pick and shovel, patching holes. A few hired laborers do the rest.

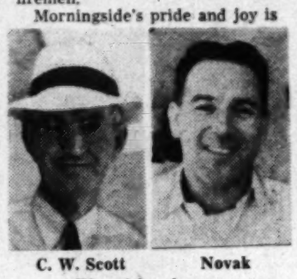
"Why don't you float a bond issue?" I asked.

"We're old-fashioned," said Spahr. "We like to stay out of debt for as long as we possibly can. Folks out here like the idea of having money in the treasury."

IT'S problematical how long the town's bankroll will last. A contract has been let with Pepco to install street lights, and that alone will take a tidy sum.

Only the city treasurer gets a salary—about $500 a year. Everybody else works on a volunteer basis, including the police and firemen.

Morningside's pride and joy is its Volunteer Fire Department, which started in 1944 with about $250 and now boasts a high-pressure pumper, several other trucks, a firehouse, an $11,000 truck on order, and about $20,000 in assets.



C. W. Scott Novak
. . . They like the town too

Lawrence Beardmore, of 221 Woodland rd., a Wakefield Dairy employe, explains:

"The only money we spend is on equipment and operating expense, because nobody gets a salary. We raise money every way we can think of—fish fries, crab feasts, bingos, and everything else. And if we miss any money-raising schemes, the Ladies Auxiliary thinks of them."

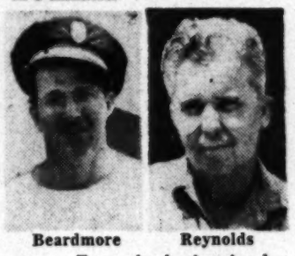
Gerald A. Glaubitz of 507 Maple rd. is one of the volunteer policemen. Thirty-year-old Jerry works in the Naval Research Laboratory and, like most of his neighbors, is a former GI.

He knew little of police work when he took the job, but Morningside is a place where few hang back when volunteers are needed.

The amateur cops got a man from the Hyattsville force to instruct them and started boning up.

Now they keep order, check traffic, and hustle an occasional drunk off to the jail at Marlboro.

LIKE the volunteer firemen, the policemen are on duty whenever they're not at work. A call to Moningside's fire number (Hillside 4665) automatically sets off a siren which can be heard for miles. In the middle of night, the boys can get to the firehouse and roll the first truck in 3 minutes.



Beardmore Reynolds
. . . Two who lend a hand

"They're a wonderful bunch of guys," says Jordan Novak of 1342 Kennedy st. nw. Jordan is part-owner of the grocery store and, though a non-resident, probably knows everybody in town.

I found him arguing with a meat salesman/about an increase in prices. "I've had more price changes in the last three weeks than I've had in years," he growled.

The store has its counterpart in any small town in the country. For 12 hours a day it's filled with barefoot kids bearing notes from mama in one hand and a coin-purse tightly clutched in the other; housewives, usually with a baby strapped to the grocery cart, picking up "a few things for dinner," and old-shoe clerks and butchers kidding familiarly with their customers and neighbors.

C. W. Scott of 5405 Meadowview dr., Suitland, Md., came in for a loaf of bread. I asked: "Why do you come all the way to Morningside for a loaf of bread."

"Oh, this bird is a friend of mine," Scott replied, jerking his thumb at Jordan. 'I just wanted to chew the fat a while."

Scott is as rugged a 65-year-old as you're likely to find. Auto body work is his trade, and he keeps as busy as he can. "Have you heard from your draft board yet?" I kidded.

"A man of 65 doesn't fool anybody but himself," he replied. "I was in the Navy in 1905. I don't think they'll be needing me this time."

SCOTT says "Washington is the easiest place in the world to make a dollar and the worst place in the world to live. The climate is awful."

His son, Elmer E. Scott of 17 Woodley rd., is one of Morningside's old-timers. He's been living there for ten years, and is one of the few in town who works at Andrews.

Like most of the city's residents, he bought his house when he "got tired of paying rent."

MARGARET BLADEN
lugging home a sack of groceries, is 13 and lives at 308 Pine Grove dr., Morningside

The average price for a place then was around $2700. By the time the war came along, the cost was $5800 and up. They're worth considerably more today.

Most of Morningside's houses are frame and have no basements. All use septic tanks, and most are heated by kerosene burners.

Lewis Reynolds of 403 Maples rd. supplies the fuel oil and kerosene for the community, and in his spare time runs the water works. "Best Water in Maryland," he assures you. "No chlorine, and it's 100 percent pure."

The houses aren't pretentious, he admits, but he's quick to add: "We have no rich people here, but we don't have any poor ones, either. There's a television aerial on practically every roof. We're doing all right."

Personally, Businessman Reynolds is "doing all right," too, but he prides himself on driving "the oldest car in town"—a '36 Chrysler.

MOST of Morningside's residents own their own homes, are veterans, work for the Government, and moved in because they "couldn't find anything better" that they could afford.

As Jerry Glaubitz put it: "There aren't any mansions out here, but to GI's who could just barely meet the no-down-payment requirement when they got out of the service, it looked like Heaven."

"What do you think of all the new folks who have been moving out here?" I asked.

"What can I say except that they're wonderful?" grinned Jerry. "After all, I'm one of them."

Need to Expand Hospitality Stressed; St. Mary's County Program Wins Praise

American communities near military installations were urged yesterday to start or expand hospitality programs for young men and women called into the services by the emergency.

The President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces declared there are, unfortunately, "still too many communities whose citizens have not made their towns a welcome place for off-duty servicemen."

St. Marys County, Md., is mentioned as one place where citizens have organized to extend hospitality to military personnel. A citizens committee there collects information about social events in the county and distributes it to personnel of the Patuxent River Naval Air Station, has begun a housing campaign, and is working closely with other groups to encourage hospitality.

Members of the staff of the President's committee, headed by Frank L. Weil, president of the National Jewish Welfare Board, have recently visited about 100 communities from coast to coast to find out what is being done for today's servicemen.

Among the committee members named by the President two years ago are the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, and Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and former head of the American Red Cross.

Anything Can Happen—and Usually Does—In Sunday Night Chinese Jam Sessions

Musical Merchants Pour It On With Varied Instruments

By Tom Schlesinger
Post Reporter

Six musicians can sound like sixteen; that is, if they resort to the use of such instruments as the lo, the pa, the so na, the hu k'im or even the yang ch-in?

Need proof? Drop by the vicinity of 6th and H sts. nw., any Sunday night. You'll hear an Oriental jam session reminiscent at times of a rush-hour traffic jam, with overtones of thunder and the wailing of banshees.

Actually, it is the frantic music of perhaps the town's most "disorganized" organized group, the Washington Chinese Music Club. Its headquarters are at 605 H st., deep in the heart of Chinatown.

Its members number in the forties, mostly merchants and laundrymen, who wish to indulge in spare-time ritualistic rhythms. Seldom, however, do more than a half dozen practice together at one time.

At Dragon's Home

The rehearsal hall — small, brightly illuminated and linoleumed, overlooks H st. It is in the second story of the building housing the celebrated Chinese dragon which emerges with whirling fury on festive occasions.

A narrow, dim passageway leads up an ancient staircase to the hall. Two walls of the hall are covered with Chinese sheet music, the others lined almost to the ceiling with cases of musical instruments.

Seated around a public address microphone in various moods of concentration are six men—pounding, strumming and blowing instruments.

To unaccustomed ears, a Chinese orchestra sounds as if it is tuning up. Improvisation and embellishment have free play to an extent that would make even a bebopper blush.

Most Are Versatile

Leader of the group is Eng Yee Ging, about 50, who handles most of the percussion instruments, using the tomtom instead of a baton to cue in his fellow experts. His equipment includes temple blocks, sonorous wooden bowls and a variety of smaller drums.

Ging, like most members, can double on numerous instruments. Perhaps his most impressive is the zither-like dulcimer (yang ch-in) with 16 sets of four strings each, played with slender bamboo beaters. It has the tone of an old upright honky-tonk piano.

In any number, the melody is usually carried by a piercing horn, known as the Chinese clarinet or so na. A double-reed pipe with a conical body ending in a metal bell, it sounds not unlike a bagpipe.

String Music Lyrical

Most audible instrumentalists, however, are those with the large temple gong (lo) and the 20-inch cymbals (pa). These men work with a careless abandon. Recitative portions are often drowned out by the shrill so nas, the bonging los and the thundering pa.

But the music club is capable of a complete about-face when it turns to its string sextet. Chinese string music is highly lyrical.

There is little harmony. The men become just a group of expressionless, relaxed musicians playing follow the leader.

These Sunday musicians have a good time, and occasionally appear at public functions garbed in ceremonial robes.

Laurel Raceway Mutuel Bldg. Is Destroyed in $50,000 Blaze

A general alarm fire early yesterday razed the parimutuel building at the Laurel Raceway and threatened the Maryland trotting track's grandstand.

An official estimate of damage was not available, but one source last night said loss would exceed $50,000.

R. H. Hutchinson, jr., president and general manager of the track, said the cause of the blaze might have been defective wiring leading into the destroyed building.

Hutchison said that although the fire did not destroy the grandstand, it may be necessary to replace the structure because of its scorched condition.

Also to be repaired, he said, is the clubhouse roof. About a quarter of it was damaged Friday night during a hail storm.

The parimutuel building, Hutchison reported, contained some office equipment, but not the parimutuel machines. These travel from track to track in season. Laurel's last meet until next summer ended July 14.

An unidentified motorist driving along Route 1 spotted the raging flames about 2 a.m. The raceway is off Route 1, about a mile-and-a-half north of Laurel.

The Savage, Md., fire department was the first to respond, with the Jessup, Md., department second.

In a short time, the general alarm call produced at least 17 volunteer fire departments from Prince Georges, Montgomery, Howard and Anne Arundel Counties. Included were 30 pieces of apparatus and five ambulances.

But by the time even the earliest companies had arrived, the parimutuel building—also known as the "tote (totalisator) building"—was virtually destroyed.

Flames from the one-and-a-half story frame structure already were scorching the grandstands, behind which the destroyed building was situated, when the firemen arrived.

Emergency Medical Post Goes to Gen. Fairbank

Brig. Gen. Weigh C. Fairbank (Army Dental Corps, Ret.), of Colvin Run, Va., has been appointed chairman of the Dental Division of the Emergency Medical Service of Washington and the Metropolitan Area.

A graduate of the Georgetown Dental School, Dr. Fairbank was the first dental officer to attain the rank of general. The Emergency Medical Service is an organization of medical and allied professions to assist the area in case of need.

Secularism Trend Hit By Bishop

Egyptian Visitor Cites Need of Turning 'To Things of God' In Cathedral Sermon

The visiting Anglican Bishop of Egypt yesterday condemned what he called the trend toward secularism in the United States and Britain.

The Rt. Rev. Geoffrey Francis Allen, D. D., from the pulpit of the Washington Cathedral, Wisconsin and Masschusetts aves., nw., spoke of "the sense of urgency in the present crisis," and the need of "turning to things of God."

Bishop Allen, who will return to Cairo next week, said he visited the Museum of Modern Art in New York a few days ago. "I saw a painting there of a group of figures clothed in gray standing on the hillside. You could see only their backs for they were looking into the distance, into a black, alarming, ominous sky.

"The picture," he continued, "seemed to express the mood of the present deep concern over Korea, and the uncertainty in the Middle East."

Part of our weakness in the world today, he said, is that we are so split in religion, politics and economics. "We speak with many different voices, often conflicting with one another," he declared.

"It is good discipline to try to see the world as God sees it—a little ball of fire whirling through space, and on all sides loneliness and hunger, the same anxieties for security and peace."

A processional cross, presented to the Cathedral by Haille Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, was borne in procession preceding the services, in tribute to Bishop Allen who has jurisdiction over that country.

Card Game Rival Admits Fatally Beating Virginian

Reginald K. Huff, 30, has confessed to the fatal beating of an Alexandria man in a poker argument Saturday, Inspector Russell A. Hawes, chief of Alexandria detectives, said yesterday.

Huff told police he is a warehouseman and lives at 2301 Cathedral ave. nw. Inspector Hawes said Huff, who is nicknamed "Nature Boy," is known as a card player who follows paydays around the Potomac yards.

Accused of cheating, Huff told police, he struck John W. Oliver, 39, of 1614 Suter st., Alexandria, three times. Oliver, a brakeman for the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, was pronounced dead at Alexandria Hospital.

Huff was arrested late Saturday night, and will have a hearing in Alexandria Police Court today.

YMCA Penny Hunt Slated in Pool Today

Hazard Hints

1. Have a plan for aiding an injured person. Remember that first aid is only temporary. Serious bleeding, stoppage of breath, and poisoning must be treated immediately.

Otherwise, keep the injured person lying down, quiet, and warm. If he is moved, his injury is apt to be increased. Call a physician or ambulance immediately.

3 New Cases Of Polio Listed In Wythe

Roanoke, Va., July 30 (AP).—Three new polio cases from Wythe County and one from Dickenson County were reported today as the force of the epidemic which struck Wytheville this month appeared to be spreading to outlying areas.

Today's cases boosted Wythe County's total to 91 cases since July 1 and Dickenson's to two. No new cases from the town of Wytheville were reported today. So far, there have been 56 cases from the town and 35 from the county, according to the Wythe County Health Department.

Sunday school services for children were broadcast over the local radio station in Wytheville this morning and most of the churches held services for the adults, although attendance was slight.

The first Wythe County polio death since last Sunday occurred yesterday afternoon when a 21-year-old father of a polio victim died in Roanoke. The man's daughter had died 11 days before her father.

Saturday's death was the 11th death from Wythe county, according to the County Health Department although the State Health Department counted it as the 12th. The death of a 24-year-old man in Baltimore July 20 is attributed to Wytheville by the State Health Department.

Bishop McNamara Dedicates New School Building

The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Washington, yesterday officiated at the cornerstone laying ceremonies of the new school building, the Catholic Church of the Assumption.

The structure at 3638 Nichols ave., se., is expected to be completed by September, 1951, the Rev. Charles E. Roach, pastor, said. It will house an auditorium seating more than 600, a school for 550 students and a convent for the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

Assisting the bishop were the Rt. Rev. Msgrs. Edward P. McAdams, Francis J. Loughran, Henry F. Graebenstein and William E. Kelly.

The Rev. Maurice King, pastor of Holy Name Church, made the dedication address.

Light Vote Forecast In Virginia Primary

Democratic, GOP Contests Slated In Eighth District

A light tournout of voters is expected in nearby Virginia Tuesday as Democrats and Republicans nominate their candidates for the Eighth District Congressional seat.

The campaign leading up to the party primary has been a quiet one. Two candidates are in each of the party contests.

The name of Howard W. Smith of Alexandria, incumbent in the Eighth District seat for 20 years, will appear first on the Democratic ballot. His opponent for the nomination is Arthur F. Souther, 32-year-old Arlington lawyer.

While the name of H. Keaney Kopp will appear on the Democratic ballot, he has withdrawn since the list was submitted to the various electoral boards.

Voters asking for a Republican ballot will choose between Hal Flood Hughes, 50, Arlington real estate man, and Tyrrell Krum, 50, of Vienna, chairman of the Fairfax Republican Committee. This is Hughes's first campaign for public office, while Krum won the Republican primary in 1948. He was defeated by Smith in the election.

Besides the nearby communities of Arlington, Falls Church, Fairfax and Alexandria, the Eighth District also includes the counties of Loudoun, Prince William, Fauquier, Stafford, Culpeper, Orange, Madison, Louisa, King George, Goochland, Albermarle, Greene and Fluvanna, and the city of Charlottesville.

In Arlington, some interest has been added to the Tuesday primary election by a referendum which will decide whether the county will borrow $500,000 for public swimming pools.

To Use Voting Machines

Arlington party and referendum voters also will be confronted by voting machines for the first time. A sample machine has been set up at the county courthouse and will be on display there from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. today.

Where paper ballots are used, the voter in the primary takes whichever party's ballot he desires to vote on, and, after marking it, places it in the ballot box marked with his party's name.

Arlington voters, however, will inform election judges in which party primary they wish to vote and whether they wish to vote in the referendum. A judge will set the machine accordingly, so the voter will be able to vote in only

2500 Meet Here

Chiropractors Hear Korean Policy Hit

More than 2500 chiropractic physicians, led by a 77-year-old Chicagoan on his honeymoon, registered yesterday for the National Chiropractic convention at the Statler Hotel.

Representative Harold O. Lovre, (R., S. D.), opened the convention with an attack on administration "bungling," which, he said caused the Korean crisis.

"There is no excuse for the five-year delay in a firm policy toward Korea," he told the delegates. "But this is war now, and we must curtail domestic and foreign spending in all programs not connected with national defense. This means no socialized medicine, no Brannan Plan and no other socialistic spending programs."

The honeymooning delegate is Dr. Albert B. Cochrane, who accepted the congratulations of his fellows. He said he was married Friday on the 37th anniversary of becoming a chiropracor.

Dr. Frank O. Logic, of Iron Mountain, Mich., spoke on chiropractic research.

The convention continues through August 4, with a house of delegates session at 9 a. m., today and a general education session on "Clinical Aspects of Cervical Distortion" at 3 p. m.

Today Is Deadline On Property Tax Return

Washington residents yesterday got their last warning from District tax officials: today is the deadline for filing personal property tax returns.

Returns must be filed or in the mail by midnight. Persons failing to heed this advice may be penalized 20 percent of the tax due. Those who wish aid in preparing the returns may obtain it in Room 215 of the District Building between 8:15 a. m. and 4:45 p. m.

Paul Mallon Dies; Newspaper Columnist

PAUL MALLON
. . . Heart attack is fatal

Paul Mallon, a Washington political columnist for more than 20 years, died of a heart attack early yesterday at his home, 15 Fort dr., Bellehaven, Alexandria, Va. He was 49.

Mr. Mallon had been in ill health for some time, his physician reported, and had not written his widely circulated Washington column, "News Behind the News," since 1947.

A native of Mattoon, Ill., he began his newspaper career at the age of 17 on the Louisville Courier-Journal. He worked on that newspaper and on the South Bend (Ind.) News-Times while educating himself at the University of Louisville and Notre Dame.

Mr. Mallon joined the United Press in 1920 in New York and was transferred to Washington in 1923.

His Washington column was published in approximately 300 newspapers.

He is generally credited with having forced the Senate in 1929 to abolish its 150-year-old rule on voting on presidential nominations in executive session.

In that year, he published two secret Senate roll calls on the nomination of Roy O. West as Secretary of the Interior, and Irving L. Lenroot as Circuit Court of Appeals judge. A Senate subcommittee threatened him with contempt and jail for refusing to divulge his source, but the ancient rule was ultimately rescinded.

Mr. Mallon was the first man to interview Calvin Coolidge after he became President in a Vermont farmhouse.

Mr. Mallon is survived by his wife, the former Viola Jane Wingreene, whom he married in 1929. They had no children.

Deaths Reported

The following deaths were reported yesterday by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the District Health Department (figure in parentheses is date of death):

Edna L. Thornton, 62 (27).
William Gilmore, 60 (27).
Samuel Gill, 38 (28).

Ira Whitacre Former Bank Director, Dies

Ira G. Whitacre, 74, former director of the Suburban National Bank and political figure in Montgomery County, died Saturday at 8 p. m. in George Washington University Hospital. He had been ill a year.

Mr. Whitacre, who lives at 8816 1st ave., Silver Spring, Md., lived in Montgomery County 40 years. He was one of the first residents of the Woodside area in Silver Spring.

He was born in Winchester, Va., and attended schools there. He also attended Washington Christian College and National University Law School.

Mr. Whitacre served as principal of Gaithersburg High School and Woodside Grammar School. He helped organize the Silver Spring National Bank and moved up from auditor to vice president. He retired in March.

He was at various times clerk to the county commissioner and county clerk.

Mr. Whitacre was a member of the Silver Spring Masonic Lodge and the Order of the Eastern Star.

He is survived by his wife Rachel C. Whitacre, of the 1st avenue address; and two daughters, Pauline E. Whitacre, also of the 1st avenue address, and Mrs. Charles W. Murray of Silver Spring.

Funeral services will be held at the Pumphrey funeral home in Silver Spring Tuesday at 3 p. m. Burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg.

Funeral Services Held For Frederick Flake

Funeral services for Frederick W. Flake, 53, chief cataloguer at the Signal Corps Intelligence Agency here, were held at Gasch's funeral home, Hyattsville, yesterday at 2 p. m. Burial was private.

Mr. Flake died Thursday at his home, 2633 Nicholson st., West Hyattsville.

Weather to Remain Sticky With Humid Heat Forecast

The Washington Post

A FAST CAST—Taking advantage of the sunny weather yesterday, John F. (Butch) Meyer, 4, of 1004 Birch st., Falls Church, practices up on his casting lessons at the Reflecting Pool

One-word weather forecast for the next couple of days: Gooey.

The temperature hit 92 at 5:20 p. m. yesterday. It won't get quite that high today but the humidity will be higher so it won't make much difference. There's some chance of an afternoon shower.

On Tuesday, more of same: heat, humidity and clouds.

The weathermen see some cooling air blowing down from Hudson Bay. But not on Washington. They expect it to peter out somewhere northeast of here.

In fact, the weathermen don't know when we'll get some relief around here.

Juvenile Crime Not Confined To Poorer Sections of District

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Juvenile crime is at everyone's doorstep, according to statistics of the Washington Criminal Justice Association.

Whether you live in the slums or in the richest precinct in Washington, you will find delinquency in significant numbers. And the crimes of the Capital's youths were far from minor, the association found.

Thirty percent of all serious felonies were performed by juveniles here in 1949. Sixty percent of all housebreakings were perpetrated by juveniles—the bulk of them less than 15 years of age.

Arrests by Precincts

Here is the breakdown on where the juvenile offenders were arrested:

Precinct 1—354 cases.
Precinct 2—361 cases.
Precinct 3—384 cases.
Precinct 4—302 cases.
Precinct 5—534 cases.
Precinct 6—100 cases.
Precinct 7— 85 cases.
Precinct 8—167 cases.
Precinct 9—710 cases.
Precinct 10—253 cases.
Precinct 11—381 cases.
Precinct 12—135 cases.
Precinct 13—327 cases.
Precinct 14—334 cases.

Police Administrative Headquarters had 127 cases, Traffic Division 27, Detective Bureau, 646, Women's Bureau, 178, and Harbor Police 7.

Girls as young as 11 became pregnant here during the year. Most cases involved girls between 15 and 16 years old.

All Short of Murder

The year's 5349 arrests of persons 17 years of age or under were for almost every crime short of murder.

That is one of the city's prime problems, says the association, and it points to the fact that present plans to fight it lack integration. There is no data, it is charged, on the effect of youth distribution, recreational resources, character-building agencies, family situation, housing, health, mental factors, schools, truancy, adult criminality, family disintegration, welfare programs, parental education and guidance, and religious groups.

Moreover, says the report, many juvenile cases, especially in the field of sex crimes, are never reported to police.

"Many children and adolescents, because of fear, shame, frustration, or inhibition, do not confide their problems and sex experiences. . . . Much of the sexual experimentation of adolescents would constitute legal violations if it were to come officially to the notice of law enforcement agents," the association says.

Result From Accidental Discovery

"Many of the cases involving minors, particularly those from 15 through 17, resulted from accidental discovery by parents where the victim was a willing participant and had no desire to report the offense," it says.

The answer is only partly given by the following statement of the report:

"In many of the cases involving minors, it seems evident that among the reasons the child becomes either the willing or unwilling victim of a sex offense may be found in a attitude of indifference or neglect on the part of the parent or parents involved.

"It is also to be noted that in many homes and rooming houses there is little privacy and many opportunities for observing and practicing sexual acts, and that parental training has not included sufficient warning about accompanying unknown persons to rooms or isolated places and accepting money or gifts from strangers."

Gang Warfare Cited

Most vicious of all the juvenile crimes were perpetrated by gangs of young hoodlums.

"During recent months there has been evidences of teenage groups committing a series of yoke robberies, auto thefts, housebreakings, etc. Reports from New York, San Francisco, and other major cities have portrayed a situation which closely resembles gang warfare and has resulted in murders, serious assaults, extortion and other criminal activity. Washington is fortunate that this type of youthful activity has not become serious here because of progressive youth programs," says the association.

"The prevention and control of this type of juvenile organization in the District of Columbia presents one of the greatest problems facing the community today and necessitates a realistic appraisal by all social forces in the city and an intelligent integrated approach toward a solution," it concludes.

Miss Bradshaw Rites Tuesday; Traffic Victim

Funeral services for Miss Charlotte Bradshaw, 55, sister of Brig. Gen. Aaron Bradshaw, will be held at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 3d and A sts. se., Tuesday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Miss Bradshaw, who lived at 1631 S st. nw., was killed instantly Saturday night when the automobile she was driving ran into a tree in Fort Lesley J. McNair.

She was sister-in-law of Judge David Pine, of the District Court, and cousin of Senator Robert C. Hendrickson, (R., N. J.).

She was a native of the District and attended schools here. She was an employe of the State Department for about 20 years. Miss Bradshaw was stricken with polio as a child but overcame the handicap and learned to drive a car with special foot pedals.

She was a member of St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

She is survived by three brothers, Brig. Gen. Aaron Bradshaw, Fort McNair; Paul Bradshaw, 901 C st. ne., and Henry Bradshaw, of Washington; and two sisters, Miss May P. Bradshaw, 1671 S st. nw., former principal of Roosevelt High School, and Mrs. Elizabeth Pine, 1625 Nicholson st. nw.

Mrs. Astryke Dies; Active In Red Cross

Mrs. Rebecca Pruden Germond Astryke, 56, member of an old Alexandria family, died yesterday at home after an illness of more than a year.

Mrs. Astryke was born in Alexandria, the daughter of the late Ernest Lee Germond and Effie Ramey Germond. Her husband, Charles S. Astryke, is employed by the Potomac Electric Power Co. of Washington.

Mrs. Astryke was a member of the Alexandria Women's Club and the American Legion Auxiliary. She was an active Red Cross worker. She lived at 16 Caton ave., Alexandria.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sisters, Miss Margaret Germond, of Alexandria, a member of the Evening Star society department; and Mrs. Henry Leven Wolgamot, of Washington. Two sons, Charles and Walter Perry, were killed in World War II.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at Wheatley funeral home, 809 King st., Alexandria, Va. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Civic Efforts Urged to Stop Delinquency

Four experts agreed last night that the juvenile delinquency problem solution requires more than additional money for prevention.

Speaking on WWDC's weekly "District Roundtable" on what should be done about the problem, the quartet emphasized that youth needs a sense of belonging and proper leadership, both of which should come from closer coordination of the community.

Dr. Leopold E. Wexberg, director of the Bureau of Mental Hygiene, quoted from a series of articles by Joseph Paull in The Washington Post, to show the importance of the problem.

Wexberg then said the delinquent "needs of feeling he is not on his own, and unprotected, but part of an organized group which has accepted him."

William R. Franck, vice president of the Big Brothers of the District of Columbia, Inc., said the cooperation of "all people is needed . . . This means more than contributions . . . It means closer coordination by the citizenry, parents and volunteer workers.

Sam A. Anderson, assistant superintendent of District Jail, said he believes "civic interest in young people" is more important than funds.

Joseph Bogan, parole officer of the National Training School for Boys, said he felt work by the people in the boy's community is the most important deterrent to delinquency.

Jackson Brodsky of the District Bar Association was moderator.

Gas Attendant Dies After Laurel Brawl

A Laurel, Md., gas station attendant, injured early Saturday in a brawl, died at 5:30 a. m. yesterday at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale.

He was Victor Chesnoski, about 30, who had living quarters at the gas station.

Maryland State Police said they were holding Army Sergt. John James Mahoney, jr., 30, of Ft. Meade, Md., in the Waterloo barracks on a charge of assault and battery lodged before Chesnoski's death.

Mahoney was arrested by military police Saturday on the request of State police.

Police said they were looking for a Laurel resident for questioning in connection with the fight.

The brawl, they reported, occurred outside the Turfman's Tavern, a mile south of Laurel on Route 1 at about 2 a. m. Saturday.

Three men and Chesnoski apparently were involved, but police said they were not able to determine the cause of the fight.

During the fracas, Chesnoski was knocked to the ground, police said. His jaw and skull were fractured.

Attendants at the hospital said Chesnoski failed to regain consciousness.

GOP Women Set Convention In Cleveland

With a program highlighting women voters' interests in current critical international and national situations, the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs will hold its 6th biennial convention in Cleveland, August 30-31 and September 1st.

Under direction of Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, national president, the convention will point up immediate Federation responsibilities and set its course for the next two years. Delegates, alternates and an anticipated large group of visitors from 43 States will attend. Headquarters will be at the Carter Hotel.

Initial program plans include an address by Ohio's senior United States Senator, Robert A. Taft, at the August 31st dinner; an August 30th luncheon honoring Republican women candidates, in both Congressional and State elections; an open air rally on August 30th, with national speakers; panel discussions, principally on issues pertaining to the international situation. The advisory board, comprised of national officers and presidents of State Federations, will have a pre-convention meeting on August 29th.

Mrs. A. Burks Summers of Washington, D. C. originator and chairman of the highly successful Lincoln Day Box Supper in the Nation's Capital last February, is general convention chairman. Assisting are leaders in the League of Republican Women in Washington, D. C.—Mrs. Frederick J. Cullen, Mrs. Davis Elkins and Mrs. Carroll Kearns, and six National Federation standing committee chairmen: Mrs. Marion Schulte, Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. C. D. Vernon, Des Moines, Ia.; Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. F. Peavey Heffelfinger, Wayzata, Minn.; Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers, Chicago, Ill.

In a letter recently to 5000 Club presidents announcing convention dates, Mrs. Farrington said:

"This convention promises to be the most important one the Federation has held. Our last convention in 1948 celebrated the first decade of the Federation. This year's convention should see us well organized and integrated to be an effective force in the coming elections."

Legion Auxiliary Holds Gala Dinner for Two Presidents

OFFICERS and members of the District of Columbia Department, American Legion Auxiliary, honored the department president, Mrs. Rose E. Perkins and the national president, Mrs. Marie L. Sheehe, who made her official visitation to the department, at a gala preconvention dinner Saturday in the Crystal Room of the Willard Hotel. The twenty-fifth annual department convention will be held at the Willard on August 10, 11 and 12.

Among the guests were the newly elected department Legion commander, Walter L. Morgan, jr., and Mrs. Morgan; Grand Chef de Gare Gail T. Judd of the 40 and 8 and Mrs. Lillian Judd, Mr. and Mrs. Owen C. Holleran, Mrs. Claire Smithson, Chapeau of D. C. Salon 14, 8 and 40 and Mr. Joseph Smithson; Hon. and Mrs. Watson B. Miller and Representative and Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith.

Other guests at the event were Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Kraabel, Mrs. Louise W. Williams, past national auxiliary president; Mrs. Charles McDonold and Miss Margaret Eaton.

Another "Tide of Toys" will flow across the Atlantic from American children to children in Europe next Christmas, according to Mrs. Rose Perkins, department president, who directed the local units' participation in the first "Tide of Toys" last winter. Continuation of this program has been authorized by the national executive committee of the American Legion. The Legion and Auxiliary will again collect toys from American children and send them to children of war-impoverished European countries, provided assistance of CARE or some other organization can be secured in the work of distributing the toys.

The first "Tide of Toys" resulted in three million toys' being sent to children in Great Britain, France, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Germany, Finland, Israel and other countries.

Switzerland Will Fete National Holiday Quietly

By Marie McNair

LITTLE SWITZERLAND, which manages to maintain its neutrality throughout all wars, will celebrate its national holiday on Tuesday—the founding of the Swiss Confederation.

The occasion has never been a big event at the legation in Washington. Now, with the Minister and Mme. Bruggmann in Europe, the only celebration will be a dinner Tuesday night to be given by the Charge d'Affaires of Switzerland, Eric Kessler, who will entertain legation staff members and their wives at Normandy Farm.

Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, who was in Europe part of the spring, has left again for France, to visit her brother at his villa at Deauville. The former Princess Amina Tousson of Egypt returned late in June, and departed Washington last Friday. She'll be back again in six weeks.

Miss Farrington Entertained Again

BEVERLY Farrington and her fiance, Maj. Hugh Richardson, were honor guests at a cocktail party and buffet supper given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Tribble at their home on Foxhall rd. There were about 20 in all, including members of the wedding party and the Delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph Farrington, parents of the pretty bride-to-be.

Mrs. Walter Bryte, wife of Colonel Bryte, stationed at Wiesbaden in Germany, writes home that it was a real thrill to be invited to one of the garden parties given by King George and Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace.

Colonel and Mrs. Bryte flew over to London from Wiesbaden for the occasion, had such a good time they stayed over several days. They're flying back this week, however, to the colonel's post.

Cocktail Party Celebrates Birthday

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR CLARENDON SMITH entertained at a cocktail party on Saturday in honor of the birthday anniversary of their son, Arthur, jr. Many of his classmates from Washington and Lee University were present. Later the group went to the Congressional Country Club for dancing.

Among the guests were Fred Vinson, jr., Brian Bell, jr., Randolph Rouse, president of Washington and Lee Alumni Association of Washington; Miss Ruth Brian and Mr. and Mrs. Lynwood King.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Blundin and her sons, John, William and Henry of Chevy Chase, Md., are vacationing at the HF Bar Ranch at Saddlestring, Wyo.

Women of 18 Nations Attend World Parley

London, July 30 (AP).—A six-day conference of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women opens here Monday.

Delegates from 18 countries numbering 2300 are here for the fifth congress of the international organization.

After attending a service at St. Paul's Cathedral today they will tackle business matters on Monday, ranging from seeing a fashion show to debating the contribution of trained women to the United Nations.

68 From United States

Foreign delegations include 68 representatives of the United States business women's clubs, 102 from Canada, 1 from Cuba, 78 from Finland, 94 from Norway, 46 from Sweden, 30 from Switzerland, 20 from Denmark, 13 from Belgium, 14 from France, 28 from Holland, 6 from Italy.

The congress will be opened by President Sally Butler of Indianapolis, Ind. A welcome to Britain will be extended by Dame Caroline Haslett, chairman of the United Federations of Great Britain. Vice President Dr. Gilda Peraza of Cuba will reply.

Men to Speak

In between official receptions and visits to London's places of interest—including three dinners at the Tower of London—the delegates will listen to speeches by their own colleagues and a few men.

The latter include Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, and the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Frederick Rowland.

The congress will wind up August 4 with the induction of officers, elected the previous day. The next world congress is scheduled for 1953.

Males Haven't Cornered the Uniforms

Services Say Women Are as Welcome as Men, IF—

By David O. Tyson

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP). The Korean crisis found 22,000 American service women —7000 of them nurses—already in uniform, backed up by an estimated 25,000 in the Reserves.

The Armed Forces made no distinction in sex when they called for volunteers and enlistments. If a woman can fit into a specialist grade the services say she's as welcome as a man.

The Women's Army Corps (WAC), which reached a peak wartime strength of 100,000, now has more than 7000 women in Army posts throughout the world. About 1200 are overseas in Germany, Austria, the Caribbean and Japan. None was in Korea when hostilities began, but a dozen were there during the American occupation.

These 7000 girls in Khaki release about seven infantry battalions for combat duty. In addition 4852 Wacs are training in organized reserve drills.

The 2-year-old WAF (Women In the Air Force) has 4000 in uniform. About 200 are overseas, mainly in Germany and Newfoundland, with some in Alaska, Hawaii, Japan, Okinawa and England.

They are supported by an estimated 3500 WAF Reservists taking part in drills at Air Force bases. No Wafs are assigned to flight duty, and the Air Force does not expect to assign any. It believes flying a job better left to men.

Release Sailors For Two Battleships

THE Navy's WAVES claim an active strength of 3400, enough woman-power to release sailors to man two battlewagons like the Missouri. About 100 of them are overseas in London, Alaska, Hawaii and Germany.

In addition, over 4000 civilian women are members of the Navy's organized Reserve, taking part in all drills except cruises. The only sea-going Waves are two lieutenants who went aboard transports in the spring of 1949. They stood no watches but merely had two weeks' training in the administrative details of transporting naval dependents by ship.

The Korean invasion found the Marines with nearly 600 women in their ranks, most of them in Washington, none overseas.

The Marine Corps was the first service to establish an organized Reserve platoon for women and now has an estimated 1900 skirt-wearing reservists. Women who are members of organized Marine Ground Reserve units are being called to duty along with the men, except those with only brief service. The latter are expected to be called later.

The Coast Guard has no Spars on active duty, but about 250 in its Reserve. It hopes to get an organized reserve program started for them shortly.

Nurses Are Still On Active Duty

NURSES—all with officers' commissions—are found today as always wherever servicemen need medical care. The Army had 3460 on duty last June 1, more than 1000 stationed abroad. About 63,000 Army nurses saw service during World War II, and 5140 are standing by in the Reserves.

The Air Force now has its own Nurse Corps, 1100 on active duty and 400 to 500 more in Reserve.

More than 2000 Navy nurses are on active duty with 153 naval stations and hospital ships. More than 11,000 served during World War II, and best available estimates place the Navy Nurse Reserve strength at 5000 today. The Navy even has five women doctors on active duty, one of them aboard a hospital ship.

Another type of service open to the feminine world is the Women's Medical Specialist Corps (WMSC), made up of dieticians and physical and occupational therapists. The Army has 322 in its WMSC, 43 of them overseas, plus 456 in its WMSC Reserve. The Air Force WMSC has 80 active, with fewer than 50 in its Reserve.

The training for women joining the regular services corresponds to that given men. WAC enlistees, taken between 18 and 34, are given 13 weeks' basic training at Camp Lee, Va. Among other subjects, they now get a course in weapons demonstration, designed to acquaint them with weapons lingo used in Army offices.

Pack Knapsacks To Go Hiking

CAMP LEE Wacs also pack a knapsack and hike off for a week of bivouac living. Several hundred Wacs lived and worked for months under field conditions in World War II. The Army wants its recruits to be prepared for the same duty.

No stranger to the rough outdoor life is the WAC director, Col. Mary A. Hallaren, a 43-year-old former school teacher. The pint-sized Colonel Hallaren has hiked through the Northwest, across the mountains of Yugoslavia and over the Andes. She averages half a dozen speeches a month today.

The WAF takes 175 recruits a month. It sends them to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., for indoctrination. This now lasts 11 weeks but may be accelerated. The fledgling Wafs don't get up in planes, but they do take aircraft recognition and plenty of physical training and drill.

Col. Geraldine P. May, first WAF director, was a WAC until the Air Force women gained their independence in June, 1948. The 55-year-old colonel, a former Campfire Girl, was in the first group of WAC officers commissioned in August 1942.

Wave Recruits Are Real Coeds

THE WAVE takes about 160 recruits a month and sends them to boot camp at Great Lakes, Ill., for 13 weeks. Here they attend classes and drill with the men in true co-ed fashion. They even "go to sea" for a day on Lake Michigan to learn what a ship is like.

The WAVE skipper, Capt. Joy B. Hancock, had a World War I tour of duty as a yeomanette and was discharged a chief petty officer. Now 52 years old, she is twice widowed. Both her husbands were killed in line of duty in Navy dirigible crashes. She was commissioned in the WAVE in October 1942 and has been WAVE director since July 1946.

Marine women recruits, taken between 20 and 31, are sent to Parris Island, S. C., where they don the traditional forest green and scarlet marine uniform for six weeks' boot training. Their director is Col. Katherine A. Towle, 52, former asssistant dean of women at the University of California.

Feminine service fashions are affected both by changing styles and a wish to integrate the women more closely into the service.

The Wacs are replacing their old uniform with a new number designed by Hattie Carnegie, who has done away with the masculine necktie and followed "definite feminine styling."

The Waves, on the other hand, are replacing the distinctive light blue of their officers' uniforms with the midnight blue and gold which male officers have always worn. The design, by Mainbocher, remains the same.

Smooth Finish of Glass Coffee-Table Top Can Be Restored by Grinding

DEAR ANNE:

Our cocktail table consists of an expensive heavy plate glass top, an inch in thickness, resting on two wooden arms. Recently, we have noticed several small scratches on the surface. Is there any way of removing these? Are there any firms in the Washington area that specialize in this work? M. S., Arlington, Va.

Hairline scratches can be removed satisfactorily from such glass with special grinding and polishing equipment. Deeper scratches can be taken off, but a slight depression will be left, which will show when the light strikes it. The work is expensive, but perhaps this good table top is worth it. Some of the firms listed under "Glass" in the yellow pages of the telephone book do this work or will send it to the factory to be done.

DEAR ANNE:

My spice cabinet is alive with some kind of small brown bug. I have used every type of spray and bug killer I can find, but nothing is effective for more than a day or two. Is there some government agency that can help me if I send them samples of my unwelcome visitors?

H. L. Dixon, Washington.

Chances are, you won't need to send your samples off, since the bugs which frequent spice cabinets can be identified by their description and habits, the Department of Agriculture reports. Tiny, roundish brown beetles, less than an eighth of an inch long, are common denizens of spices. Entomologists nickname them 'cigaret beetles' and 'drugstore beetles.'

The reason why they are so hard to eliminate from cabinets is the fact that they live right in the spice cans. Often, they travel home from the grocery that way, for in the larva stage these critters are virtually invisible to the handlers who pack the cans. They also travel from one apartment to another. Once one infested package lands on your shelf, the beetles are likely to spread through all the spices you have on hand.

Therefore, your first step in combatting the pests must be drastic. You have your choice of throwing away all of your present spices, or of 'sterilizing' every can by heating it at a temperature of 140 degrees for half an hour. This will kill the beetles in residence.

Once all live beetles have been eliminated, clean your pantry thoroughly with soap and water, and then spray every crack and cranny with a 5 percent solution of DDT. Thereafter, inspect all newly purchased spices for the tiny hulls, and keep all stored spices tightly closed. If you are alerted, you can easily keep them from extensive infestation.

DEAR ANNE:

My basement room walls are of concrete blocks which were roughly cemented together, and wallboard. I have treated them with waterproofing and covered them with paint. I would like to have them plastered but feel that it would be too expensive. Is there any plaster-like finish I could put on them myself to give the wall a rough plaster look?

Mrs. T. E. H., Hagerstown, Md.

There is a special wall paint made to create an effect of plaster on walls of other substances. Two coats are required, but you need not be an expert to apply them. A paint store at 609 C st. nw., Washington, carries this product in six shades.

KOREA

ITS IMPACT ON U. S. PUBLIC OPINION

Starting WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 2, The Washington Post will publish an EXCLUSIVE SERIES of eight reports by the Gallup Poll on how the American people are reacting to the grave military crisis in Korea and its underlying implications. These reports will deal with the following vital questions—

Would public opinion sanction our using the Atom Bomb if the U. S. gets into another war?

Which do the American people consider more important—that the U. S. stay out of another World War, or that Russian expansion in Europe and Asia be stopped?

How far is the public willing to go at this time in mobilizing the strength of the U. S.?

Should the United Nations now be reorganized to leave out Russia and her satellites?

Should we help re-arm Western Germany? Japan?

What should we do about communists in the U. S.?

Should U. S. industry shift over now to all-out production?

How will we pay for the war? What is the people's reaction to immediate increase in income taxes?

Pension Demand Stymies Contract

By Richard L. Coe

THOUGH NO ONE seems to doubt that the show will go on as usual, a serious dispute is brewing between Actors' Equity and the producers' organization, the League of New York Theaters.

The two-year Equity-League contract expires the 15th and dealings have been deadlocked for the past 10 days. The dispute boils down to two points.

1. The actors want the producers to "explore, establish and apply" a pension plan for actors.

2. The actors also insist on a $100 minimum for members of road companies.

On both points, the producers say no, but the pension idea gets a louder negative.

It seems to me the producers have something when they point out, in the words of Member Arthur Schwartz, that while they are "sympathetic to the scheme," the plan "must be based on continuity of employment, a condition that is virtually nonexistent in the theater."

While this may be an Equity device to force some sort of "continuity of employment," they have not so stated that as their aim.

Equity's Executive Secretary Louis Simon points out that Equity, contrary to the league's accusation, "has made no ultimatum. We have merely asked that the producers sit down with us to study a pension plan. What we want is some attention given to it. What we don't want is a summary "no."

Should the League-Equity contract not be signed, the actors have stated that that will sign separate pacts with individual producers, "embodying the terms the League has refused."

Since the League has accepted a 12½ percent increase on existing touring salaries and partial costs of hospitalization plans, it's clear the pension matter is the heart of the conflict. And just how pensions can be introduced in a world where there's no such thing as continuous employment is a puzzler.

Which may be just what the actors are meaning.

That the up in road minimums and the hospitalization plan can be done is attested by the Cheryl Crawford management during the past several years. It took the success of "Brigadoon" to start it, but the lady took the step on her own.

But the basic issue and the reason I'm certain that the producers turned thumbs down is the same one which keeps Marcus Heiman running the National as a movie house to a weekly loss. The managers feel the actors are telling 'em how to run their business, a cry we've been hearing too much of down here. Certainly, somebody ought to tell management how to run the theater business because it's missing a lot as we all know so well.

One hundred and fifty babies—from two weeks to five years—won cups, ribbons, oooooooohs and aaaaaaahs yesterday at the climax of a month-long baby contest conducted by the Disabled American Veterans.

An estimated 1000 spectators watched the three-hour Coronation Pageant at the Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. The babies wore long robes of regal colors and gold or silver crowns.

Scoring highest in health beauty and popularity in the male bracket, was two-year-old Jay Martin Emerson of 2308 41st st. nw. His father, a musician, is administrative assistant to the president of the D. C. Federation of Music's local 161.

Top female charmer was 9-months-old Betty Glock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Glock, 2514 14th st. nw. Her father is a construction engineer.

Other "supreme" winners, sharing the court with the King and Queen, were Prince Jay, eight-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gladis, 524 13th st. ne.; Princess Cassandra, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Stiles, 223 Lynnwood st., Alexandria; Duke Kelly, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Kelly, 1118 K st. ne.; Supreme Duchess Caroline, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Sholtis, 2203 LeGrande ave., Alexandria; Supreme Count Fred, six-months-old son of Sergt. and Mrs. Fred B. Ship's Passengers Give $1346 for Korea Forces

Southampton, England, July 30 (U.P.).—Passengers on the liner Andes, which docked here tonight from Buenos Aires, donated 481 pounds ($1346) to provide comforts for United Nations forces in Korea.

Gas Station Robbed Of $55 by Gunman

New's Shell Service Station, 4131 Minnesota ave. ne., was robbed of $55 at 5.45 p. m. yesterday by a gunman who fled in a taxi.

Jeff Trayner, 28, of 4120 Grant st. ne., an attendant, said the holdupman took the money from a pocket of his overalls. Trayner's only description of the bandit was that he was a Negro, and carried a small black gun. Police broadcast a lookout for a Cardinal cab.

NORTHWEST PARK APARTMENTS

Offers Private Living Similar to Your Own Home

On New Hampshire Ave. Extended, North of University Lane

Ready for Immediate Occupancy

EXAMINE THESE FEATURES. COMPARE THEM WITH OTHER APARTMENTS, AND BE AMAZED!
1. Private entrances, and broad, private terraces for family living, face a whole mile of cool, wooded parkland.
2. Twenty individual spacious layouts of one, two, and three-bedroom units, some with bedrooms upstairs.
3. An unusual roadway system provides safety for children, with one-way traffic, and brings the car to your own front door.
4. Almost half the units are end units, with sun, air and long views on three sides.
5. Masonry walls between units provide complete soundproofing.
6. Stair-climbing reduced to a minimum as private entrances (70 percent of total) enter directly at ground level.

How to Get a Husband

Friends Can Help or Hinder Marital Chances

By Cora Carlyle

EVERY girl has a friend, maybe two or perhaps a dozen. If you ever stop to think how you made your own friends, you'd see that you followed a common pattern. When you were a child, your friends were the kids on the block because you lived near them. As you grew older and proximity was no longer a determining factor, your friendships became more widespread and grew out of common interests and mutual respect.

From the time you were an adolescent, it probably became crystal clear what a strong influence girl friends have on each other. You knew it was your best friend's opinion of the new suit that mattered. Whether or not she went to a particular dancing class was what swung you to it.

Through experience, you became well aware of the virtues and comforts of friendship. How many times did you impress an important date with Mary's evening wrap? In that borrowed finery, you probably sailed through the evening feeling majestic. Didn't it happen that Mary comforted you and saw you through the unbearable period when your love life was torn asunder? Or perhaps she covered up for you when you sallied forth on forbidden dates but told mama you were at her house. Naturally, it wasn't all one-sided. You, in your turn, did as much for her.

Man, who has been so jealous of the strength and endurance of this bond between women, has created the myth that friendship between them is impossible, that it was cut out of the cloth of opportunism. Man is also responsible for the exaggerated legend of cattiness between women. Of course it exists, but never to the degree he ascribes. We have never subscribed to the cynical theory that women are incapable of true communion and fellowship with each other. In fact, the need for friendship between women is a necessity. They are dependent on it from childhood to maturity and often carry childhood friendships to their dying day. Despite the tale of Damon and Pythias, men do not have this need or dependency to the same degree.

Ask for the Facts

WE HAVE stressed how much we cherish friendship because we are going to ask you to do something which may sound mighty like dumping your best friend into the nearest garbage can. In your new program to get a husband, we ask you to appraise calmly whether your friend—or friends—aid or hinder you in your objective. Note that we do not advise you to fling words of recrimination in her face or to hold her responsible for your present state of singleness or frustration. We merely ask that you ascertain the facts. Discount the obvious and examine the true state of affairs with a surgeon's knife.

Are you ready to probe beneath the surface of your friendship and bring to light its beneficial or harmful nature? Facing painful facts is a prerequisite to apply the moral of our stories to your own case. If you say our cases are exaggerated, you are rationalizing. If you accuse us of distorting life to prove our points, you refuse to draw the necessary analogy even if you are acting like one of our characters in some less pronounced way. The greatest difficulty lies in the nature of the criteria we ask you to apply to your friendships.

Those Wasted Hours

THE most glaring and common mistakes girls make is to seek refuge in each other's company instead of making sustained efforts to meet men. Let us give you a specific example! It is Saturday night, and you don't have a date. You'll go mad if something doesn't turn up! You try to fill the evening by tacking those loose shoulder straps or shortening your new dress. It's no use—you're getting more restless. So you pick up the new book you brought home from the library. It doesn't hold your interest because a book isn't what you want. You remembered reading was all right for Monday and Thursday when you managed to pass the evening without getting too depressed. The problem of how to pass this one Saturday evening is still on your hands. You timidly think of the new resolution to make the effort to meet men and wonder if you have the courage to investigate the new gin rummy group in the neighborhood.

Perhaps Sally, your girl friend will go with you. Undoubtedly, it would be easier to call Sally and suggest you go to the movies together. She is in the same boat as you and the anonymity of the movies covers up that painful fact that neither of you have a date. By going to the movies, the two of you seek refuge in the darkness and in each other's comfort. Such comfort is unhealthy and nets you nothing but a day nearer to the grave.

This time, however, you decide to take a stab at meeting men but you haven't the nerve to do it alone. So you telephone Sally and suggest you both venture forth to the gin rummy group. Fine, if she agrees. But too many times the girl friend is shyer or not pepped up enough to fish in new waters; she'll probably hold you back with something like the following: "I'm too ashamed to walk in alone", or "How do you know any men will be there?" or "If I can't have a real date, I don't want any!" She is putting into words many of your own thoughts, she is strengthening your own timidity and putting the final nail in the coffin of your short-lived initiative. So as a "compromise" you probably go to the movies with Sally.

Here is an instance where in the name of friendship, you not only fed each other's weaknesses, but also undermined and destroyed a newly born confidence required to break the pattern of habit. Therefore if either you or your friend want to discover one reason for your meager social life, you must stop and consider how you failed to help yourselves.

Let's diagnose another case of an unsound friendship. This is the story of Beth and Ellen. Beth is good-looking, charming, successful and of a fairly strong character underneath the surface manner of soft femininity. Ellen's virtues, unlike Beth's, were of a more subtle kind. Neither her wit nor her looks were as obvious as Beth's whose success in life has always stood out in contrast to the meagerness of Ellen's. But they had been fast friends since elementary school days and Ellen got a kick out of Beth's home, husband and children. If I can't get my own," Ellen probably thought unconsciously, "at least I'm entitled to enjoy Beth's." The years quickly passed and Ellen was so occupied living Beth's life, raising Beth's children, listening to Beth's difficulties with Bill, that she never really exerted herself to get a husband of her own.

Hundreds Like Her

YOU may think this is all exaggerated. Look around you and see the hundreds of Ellens who get compensation out of living vicariously. Far better for Ellen if she had suffered many nights' loneliness instead of accepting crumbs at another woman's table. The pain of that loneliness might have stirred Ellen into action.

Long ago, Ellen should have faced the fact that she wanted and was entitled to a husband, a home and children of her own—not a substitute fantasy. By permitting herself to become enmeshed in another's life, her best years slipped by. The halcyon days are numbered and hay must be made during them. The sad part of the story is that neither girl appreciated what was happening.

Or do you have the kind of girl friend whose influence over you is so tremendous that it is the determining factor in any course of action? Is her approbation necessary before you allow yourself to like anything whether it be a hat, a bibelot or a man? Does your admiration for the standards of this girl blind you to the fact that you are allowing another person to do the judging and feeling for you?

Emotions Haywire

The relationship between Eden and Irene is a classic example. Eden was everything Irene wasn't—warm, outgoing and irresistible to women and men alike. They were intelligent girls of high standards and good taste. Because Irene longed to be loved and admired like Eden, she went haywire in her feelings toward Eden. What Eden admired became the sine qua non in the life of Irene—even after the incident with John. Irene met John through a business friend and he was a wholesome, ordinary young man who immediately fell for Irene. It was an unusual happening because Irene's rigidity left most men cold. Because Irene was dissatisfied with her single state, she gave herself a chance with John. She accepted his invitations to dinner and theater. Soon she began to think he was a nice guy.

A friendship developed but a romance on its way was nipped by a casual remark Eden made to Irene about John's very ordinary character. The impact of this chance remark on Irene was devastating—she couldn't tolerate John any more. Immediately, she felt that marriage with him would be too severe a compromise of her standards. She decided she never saw anything in him anyway. She was afraid that her friend's remark meant that a relationship between couples after marriage would have to be a casual one. Sure, she saw John again, but she carried over these feelings and unmistakably conveyed to him, even though not in words, that she didn't think too much of him. John is now successfully married to the cute, adoring little redhead next door—Irene is still hugging her friend's perfectionist standards.

How silly, you say. Silly, yes, but improbable, no! Even if you are not the girl who carries these exaggerated notions to the extreme Irene did, do you allow your girl friend to turn her nose up at the new date? Perhaps her attitude does not stop you from going out with him but does the poison show its effects by a newly assumed critical attitude towards him? Does her criticism make you like him less? While it's perfectly natural to let your friend's opinion about a hat stop you from buying it, it should not influence you in the important crises. When it comes to loving a man or wanting him for a husband the only true criteria are your feeling and judgment. It is only human nature to want the girl friend to think you've made a good match, but when her opinion becomes a decisive factor in accepting or rejecting a man, your relationship with her is a cancerous growth which should be removed.

Don't be the girl who mistakes neurotic entanglements for true friendship or who robs herself of life's real gifts by a distorted application of the rules of friendship. This is the time to drag out the copybook and turn to the page that reads, "She travels fastest who travels alone."

(Next: The girl who lives alone.)

Under McNutt's Rule

UA Will Continue TV Counterattack

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK (AP).—Law professor, Governor, High Commissioner to the Philippines, Federal Security Administrator, War Manpower boss, Ambassador, insurance executive—and now, movie magnate.

McNUTT

That's the latest turn in the colorful and varied career of silver-haired Paul V. McNutt, the one-time Indiana newspaper delivery boy who is the new board chairman of United Artists Corp.

The handsome, 58-year-old lawyer-politician became head of an ailing company in a sick industry the other day in a surprise turnover of ownership and management of United Artists. Subsequently, he indicated to newsmen that his principal interests would continue to be his international law business and the insurance field.

He has law offices in New York, Washington and Manila. He is board chairman of the Philippine-American Life Insurance Co. and general counsel of the United States Life Insurance Co.

Calling the Signals

HE SAID at a news conference that he held 90 percent of the stock of United Artists "as trustee for my principals." And he emphasized that Frank L. McNamee of Philadelphia, new United Artists president, "will be the active head and he is the one who will give the orders."

But it was clear that McNutt was calling the signals and that he will become an important factor in the movie industry, which has been suffering a slump blamed on factors ranging from television to the rising costs of baby-sitters.

He moves in as head of one of the best known firms in the movie business, in operation since 1919, but one that reportedly has been losing upward of $20,000 a week in recent months. But if the company's position and the industry's situation aren't encouraging, McNutt is not discouraged.

"There's nothing in the present movie slump that good pictures and good management can't cure," he declares.

"The motion picture industry certainly has its place in the entertainment world. Just because this is a period of depression for the motion picture industry doesn't mean that it won't come back—it will come back."

McNutt has emphasized that he and his associates, whom he declines to identify, wouldn't have bought control of United Artists if they hadn't thought it was a good business venture. He does not discount television as an influence on movie attendance and says "Anyone who looks at the entertainment world in any of its aspects must take television into account." But he points out that United Artists already is active in distributing and encouraging production of special films for television, and will continue to be active in that field.

$4,000,000 Estimate

McNUTT and his associates acquired control of United Artists from former film stars Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin, both major independent producers.

Miss Pickford and Chaplin were among the founders, along with the late Douglas Fairbanks and the fabulous David Wark Griffith. At one time, substantial interest in the company was held by some of the best known figures in the industry—such as David O. Selznick, Sir Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn.

However, the company treasury eventually bought back all the stock except the 8000 shares held equally by Miss Pickford and Chaplin—with 12,000 shares in the treasury and not outstanding.

McNutt said he and his associates acquires 90 percent—which would be 7200 shares—of the stock held by Miss Pickford and Chaplin. He declined to say how much they paid, although some trade circles put the figure at two million dollars each to Miss Pickford and Chaplin.

Considerable mystery still surrounds the nature of the transaction and future plans of McNutt in his new rule. But playing a new role is not a novelty for the tall, husky Indianian who, at the age of 8, expressed the ambition to be President of the United States—and might have made it in 1940 if the late Franklin D. Roosevelt hadn't decided he would be a third term candidate.

If McNutt still has presidential ambitions, he keeps them to himself, but he still keeps in the public eye.

The Right Type of Hat For a Diet Expert

First Mary Ellen rhymed an offer to bet her best hat that Ida Jean "Reducing Diet" Kain is the type who can eat hot buttered doughnuts without getting fat.

Then Ida Jean answered with a jingle that protested it wasn't so, because overeating invariably "raises Kain."

Now Mary Ellen concedes defeat with the lines:

I'll eat my rash words
(And my weight I'll not boost).
You'll love my best hat

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Wonder if they'll use the same type of ration coupons this time. I saved a few as keepsakes.

LET JUSTICE BE DONE

In June of 1944, Dorothy Berrum came here from Wisconsin to get a Government job. One night in October of that year, she went on a date with Marine Pvt. Earl McFarland.

The next day, her lifeless body was found at Hains Point. McFarland was subsequently executed for the murder.

In the Senate last week, a bill was passed to pay $5000 to Dorothy's parents. She had come here to do war work, and had been killed by a U. S. Marine. To the Senate, this appeared to be a case in which an aggrieved citizen was entitled to redress.

It is good to know that the busy Senate can take the time to listen to such a plea, and that in our country the rights of an individual are respected by the State.

I trust that the Congress will give similar consideration to a bill which would give compensation to Washington's own Dorothy Kilmer, the innocent victim of a policeman's pistol shot.

Dorothy was paralyzed for life by a District cop who was foolishly playing with his service revolver. Emergency Hospital pulled her through the first critical days, when it was feared she'd die, and readers of this column contributed thousands of dollars to a rehabilitation fund that has permitted Dorothy to pay her way as she learned to get about with braces.

But this money cannot last much longer, and it is clearly the responsibility of the Government to pay for the damage done by its careless agent.

The District Commissioners denied a plea for compensation on the grounds that "it might set a bad precedent." Here is a chance for Congress to set a good precedent.

District Liners will remember I. J. Parker's cartoon showing a psychiatrist who concedes that his patient's problem is quite difficult and suggests: "Have you tried writing to Mary Haworth?" Harry J. Schwalb of 3000 Connecticut ave. nw., who drew this one, titles it: "An unusual problem, Mr. Smith. Have you tried writing to Bill Gold?"

THIS IS WASHINGTON

Anne T. Flynn of Purcellville, Va., not only agrees that this section of the country has a lot of out-of-State licensed cars, but actually tops my item about them.

In a recent auto ride, Anne decided to count the "foreign" autos on the road and in a few minutes compiled this list:

Indiana, Connecticut, California, North Carolina, West Virginia, two Floridas, two Ohios, four Pennsylvanias, the usual swarm of Marylands, Virginias and Districts, four from Texas—and one from Hawaii.

OUR KIND OF FOLKS

Dr. I. G. M. of 1314 Massachusetts ave. nw. thinks one of the friendliest signs in the area is the one outside the fire station on Old Georgetown rd., in Bethesda. It says:

"If You Are Lost, Come In. Ask Us."

DON'T BITE ON IT

W. M. Devine of 234 F st. nw. booby traps his friends with the question: "Is the second day of the week pronounced TOOS-day or CHEWS-dee?" The victim feels pretty silly when, regardless of his answer, he's informed: "The second day of the week is pronounced 'MUN-day.'"

IT'S UNANIMOUS

Ida Mae Pristus of 1631 S st. nw. got on a bus the other morning and inquired: "Are you local?"

"Yes ma'am," replied the driver, "and so is the bus."

Johnson 'Explains' Defense Cuts

By Drew Pearson

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson laid the blame on a dead man when indignant members of the Senate Appropriations Committee grilled him behind closed doors about our shocking unpreparedness in Korea.

Pearson

Johnson claimed that his predecessor, James Forrestal, had recommended the 1949-50 military defense budget, which ran out on June 30 of this year.

"I came into office after the budget was prepared," the defense chief explained, "and do not feel that I should be held responsible for something over which I had no control."

Johnson neglected to add that he had urged further cuts when he took office. And he might also have told Republican Senators that they were the most vociferous demanders of economy and the most laudatory of his economy cutbacks.

Johnson barged into the meeting obviously prepared for vigorous criticism. Questioned on whether the President's $10,516,976,000 arms request was enough for the Korean emergency, he replied:

"It's enough for the present and the foreseeable future. If we need more, we'll come back. It all depends on how fast you want to disrupt the whole economy of the Nation."

Not satisfied with this answer, Senators John McClellan (D., Ark.) and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) demanded a more explicit answer.

'Make Sure This Time'

"We want to make sure that you can do the job this time," sharply stated McClellan. "If it isn't enough money, say so."

"The President's request is sufficient to successfully prosecute the war in Korea and to equip us for any other emergency of a military nature that may arise," Johnson replied.

The Defense Chief also was put over a barrel about whether we intend to cross the thirty-eighth parallel and occupy all Korea, once the North Koreans are driven back. It was Chief of Staff Omar Bradley, who accompanied Johnson, who answered this question.

"Our only orders are to go to the thirty-eigth parallel," replied Bradley. "If any change is made in that decision, it will come from the President."

Friendship Pilgrimage

Believing that international friendship is something you have to work at all the time, 1000 Catholic college students are sailing for Europe today on a pilgrimage to Rome and other European cities.

For months they and about 2000 other members of the National Newman Club Federation and the National Federation of Catholic College Students have been washing dishes, waiting on table, and saving their money to make this trip. Sailing on several different ships, the largest group leaves today on the SS Leguria.

In the last two years they have raised a total of $750,000 from college students to send medical supplies, food, books to the students of Europe. Now they plan to follow this up with personal visits. In Europe they hope to meet with some of these students and perhaps form friendship clubs which will conduct letter-writing campaigns and exchange of students in the future.

Note—Meanwhile, when Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) urged the Senate not to cut the State Department's budget for student exchange and for friendly propaganda in foreign countries, Senate economizers led by George (D., Ga.) and Byrd (D., Va.) overruled him.

Dance Masters Open Convention At Shoreham

The Dance Masters of America, Inc., opened its sixty-sixth annual convention yesterday with a president's reception and ball at the Shoreham Hotel.

More than 400 dancing instructors from all over the country registered for the meetings, which will continue through Saturday.

Yesterday's meeting in the Terrace Ballroom of the Shoreham was "a training school for teachers," officials said.

Instruction in the new fox trot and the teen-age fox trot was given by Hesston Beaudoin. Don LeBlanc taught the Charleston and Richard Moore instructed in the square dance.

Classes today include tap dancing, ballet, production work and kindergarten methods and dances. A costume display is scheduled at 8 p. m.

Women's Board, Georgetown University Hospital, Keen on Work and Hecht Co. Fashions . . .

Enthusiasm for their many-faceted program enlivens the fund-raising activities of the Women's Board, Georgetown University Hospital. For over forty years members have played important roles in successful projects resulting in the donation of equipment and furnishings to the hospital and clinics. Aiding them in assisting the hospital to carry on its charitable functions are the many Volunteers who have served over 14,000 hours. Listening to the recent achievement of the Women's Board (the purchase of an iron lung with proceeds from a benefit concert) is the popular Virginia Baker, who came in for her share of applause for her charming ensembles from The Hecht Co. Like so many on-the-go Washingtonians, the vivacious Virginia looks to the Fashion Floor of this great store in the Nation's Capital for flattering costumes for important social functions.

THE Hospitality Cart, the little shop on wheels carrying needed articles and gifts to patients' bedsides, is another Women's Board project at Georgetown University Hospital. BEAUTIFUL cut flowers are sold in Georgetown University Hospital by members of the Women's Board. A percentage of the profits thus earned benefits hospital projects. In the interest of beauty and fashion, Georgetown University Hospital boasts a fully equipped Beauty Salon where patients may go to look their loveliest upon discharge from the hospital. Or, if they prefer, a portable Beauty Bar is sent to their hospital room. Above, left to right: Virginia Baker (Mrs. F. M. Rogers); Mrs. J. Winthrop Peabody, President, Women's Board; Mrs. William E. Leahy, Vice President; Mrs. Donald E. Doyle, Vice President, and Mrs. William Ragan, Volunteer.
